WE NOMINATE

Nicholas J. Bartolino, Alan W. Carrick, Enoch J. Durbin, Frederick M. English, Stuart Robson, William M. Sloane and William L. Wilson, who in an era of unprecedented community growth, and in the midst of an acrimonious and at times distressing presidential campaign, have re-affirmed their faith in a way of government which must be guarded and strengthened and never taken for granted on any level of operation. In next Tuesday's General Election these seven Princetonians, ranging in years from 41 to 62, will pass in review before their fellow residents.

Representing varying shades of conventional political opinion, but still united in their interest and faith in the present and future of the Princeton Area, this fall's aspirants for elective honors constitute an interesting cross-section of two inextricably interwoven municipalities, the Borough and Township. Three are lawyers, two labor in the vineyards of education, one is an independent businessman and one is a ranking officer of a major financial corporation. With the exception of Robson, unopposed by the Democrats in seeking his third successive term as the Township's Tax Assessor, all are bidding for three-year terms on the local legislative bodies.

In the Borough scramble for two unsalaried councilmanic posts, which has produced little more than a hum-drum exchange of countercharges, observers tend to pair off the Republican incumbent, Carrick, and Bartolino, a painting contractor and an officer of the Princeton Democratic Club, and to match up the two-first-time candidates, Democrat Durbin and Republican English. The 62-year old Carrick, president of Borough Council in 1964 and Assistant General Counsel for the Prudential Insurance Company, is campaigning on a record stretching back into the 1940's when he served as Borough Planning Board Chairman.

Bartolino, 41, a combat veteran of World War II and active in the N. J. National Guard, is a lifelong Princetonian and a worker in recent years for what is termed "responsive government." Durbin, also 41, a research scientist and deeply interested in the new Public Library, is Senior Research Aeronautical Engineer and Lecturer in the University's Department of Aerospace and Mechanical Sciences, while the 52-year old English, a product of the University of Pennsylvania and the Rutgers Law School, is a Legal Analyst with New Jersey's Treasury Department. The latter has come to the fore as an officer of two new Princeton organizations, the Residents of Princeton Association and the Princeton Preservation Committee.

The traditionally Republican Township Committee is again facing a challenge from Sloane, 43. A partner in a New York law firm, a member of the Township's Open Space Commission and a Trustee of the Swann Estate (owner of Borough Hall and environs), Sloane is opposing Wilson, the "outgoing mayor." Wilson, 53, nationally recognized public relations executive, has long served Princeton institutions, including the Public Library, Princeton Hospital and the Township Board of Education. The 50-year old Robson, a fixture in Township Hall since 1954 and now accustomed to "running against no Democratic candidate," is head of the Lower School and the Department of Science in Princeton Country Day School.

For their willingness to accept the responsibilities of democratic government; for understanding that the strength of this democracy is rooted in the concern of citizens in all walks of life; for placing the desire to serve above personal consideration; these seven are our nominees for

WE LOVE YOU, LESLEY!

A Welcome for Miss B. Princeton belonged to Lesley Bush on Monday.

It was the happiest, sunniest occasion that Princeton has seen for a long, long time, if ever, and as the saying goes, it couldn't have happened to a nicer girl.

Lesley Bush, 17, senior at Princeton High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bush of Dodds Lane, returned to Princeton after an Olympic triumph in which she came from behind to win a gold medal and become Women's Platform Diving Champion.

Lesley had been given only a hint of what lay ahead for her on Monday when she came home to Dodds Lane early Sunday morning. But when a police escort arrived at her house shortly after 1 p.m. and drove here to hte corner of Moore and Hawthorne, escorted her out of the car and onto a throne built into a 30-foot float while the P.H.S band played "Hello, Dolly" and virtually the entire student body, gathered on the lawn, roared out "Hello, Lesley!" and the float deposited her next to a speakers' platform in front of the school — Lesley knew she was being welcomed home.

"I'm more nervous on this platform than I was on the other one!" Lesley confided to Kenneth Michael, PHS principal, as they sat together listening to school officials repeat what everybody knew already, that Lesley was a wonderful girl and that Princeton was proud of her, fit to burst.

NOTICE

The current 56-page issue of TOWN TOPICS is eight pages larger than the corresponding issue of a year ago. Although it includes a greater volume of advertising than any previous 56-page issue, it was necessary to reject almost two additional pages in order to maintain the proper balance between advertising and news.

Parade! And then the parade began. Prancing in front were the lithe boys of the Valiants marching team, leading the way up Moore Street headlong into the "Welcome Lesley" sign on the 195 Nassau Building and then veering sharply down Nassau in the glowing autumn sun while mothers and children, shop-keepers and friends, applauded and cheered. Estimates place the crowd at about 2,500.

Schools were out for the afternoon, and small faces watched and shouted from behind the iron-bar fence at Nassau Street School.

It was a wonderful parade. There were two bands — the PHS band in uniform, and the Princeton University Band, bright in orange jackets, playing the PHS Fight Song and "Going Back" even "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad!"

The Imperial Debs Drill Team twirled its magic. The PHS Cheer Leaders proudly carried the Olympic flag. (Lesley is a cheer leader too, on other occasions). The Leader Corps Drill Team spun out its sassy blue skirts. A small, solemn contingent from the Hun School, correct in navy blazers, also marched, and so did a deliriously happy constellation from Valley Road School because Lesley's brother, David, goes there.

Convertibles carried the mayor and school officials and YMCA officials and members of the Bush family.

Here She Comes. And the float! More than 200 PHS volunteers had worked on it all week-end, even during the PHS-Ewing football game on Saturday, laboriously stuffing white paper napkins (someone said 10,000) and red and blue crepe paper into the chicken-wire skeleton designed by Arthur Stein, art teacher at PHS; Fred Siebelts, art director for the Borough schools and Mrs. Betty Hewell of the PHS physical education department, and built by Ronald Dale, industrial arts teacher. The orginal idea for an elaborate float came from PHS students themselves and Sandy Northrup was foreman in charge.

"PHS" and "LESLEY" and "1964" stood out in royal blue against those white napkins (royal and white are PHS colors). There was a yellow and black torch (concealing the tractor that pulled it all) and that red-white-and-blue throne.

Down Bayard Lane they went, past a row of cheering girls in the blue gym tunics of Miss Fine's, to the YMCA. There the parade stopped and everybody gathered on the big east lawn.

Lesley received from "The Princeton Comunity" a handsome silver bowl. Mrs. Richard Hughes, acting for the Governor, presented to Mr. and Mrs. Bush a china bowl.

Three were bouquets and plaques and speeches and finally there was Lesley herself saying "I just want to say 'Thank you.' In Japan I was so proud to write 'USA' after my name and I want you to know I'm proud to say 'Princeton,' too!"

Earlier, at Princeton High, Mr. Michael had announced the new Lesley Bush Award, to be given each year to a senior who exhibits "perserverance and humility" in attaining recognition for himself and the community. It will not be an athletic award, although its first recipient was Lesley herself.

Home Town Welcome. "It's the first time I've ever thought of Princeton as a 'home town' in the best sense of the words," said one woman during the parade, and a life-long resident of the community said, "This kind of happy spontaneous reaction couldn't have happened here 25 years ago. The town is the better for it."

It seemed to touch the entire community. Mothers with infinitesimal children parked in convertibles along the parade route so that everybody could have a good view.

It would have been foolish to try and shop: all the shopkeepers were watching the parade. In the bone-warming sun at the "Y," white-haired residents of "Merwick" sat in their wheel-chairs while the young crowd went swirling around them.

Curiously, there was no vandalism. Shop-window signs had been painted on Friday, and the banners strung across Nassau Street. Everything was still there Monday (although some touching up had to be done) and the only vandal was the wind that blew down a couple of the "welcome" banners that spanned Nassau.

Signs ranged from the "Huan Ying" Chinese welcome in the window of Schusters' antique shop, to "We Love You, Lesley'" over the night depository of the old Princeton Bank and Trust Building to the dignified "Gold Medallist, Lesley Bush" in heavy cloth on the new Princeton Bank and Trust. The First Presbyterian Church devoted its outdoor bulletin board to Lesley. The Garden Theater removed Ingrid Bergman from the marquee and substituted "We're proud to honor Lesley Bush." The Ski Shop just said "Hi." Cars in the motorcade came from Nassau - Conover Motors, Kammler Buick-Pontiac and Prince Chevrolet. George W. Good was parade marshall, Charles B. Petzold was parade chairman.

One of the people who saw the champion on the float, and listened to the applause and the cheers, was Herbert Dickman, Lesley's grandfather who lives near Newtown, Pennsylvania.

"Isn't she a wonderful girl?" he said. "And she'll always be as nice a girl as she is now."

READING TRAINS RUN ON

New York Service Continues. To the obvious delight of Princeton commuters who rattle to fame and/or fortune via the Reading to New York, the recent huffing and puffing which threatened to roundhouse forever their favorite steam cars has been satisfactorily hunipered.

The Reading Company has agreed to continue its proprietorship of the "Crusader" and the "Wall Street," and therein to transport some 200 New Jersey commuters to Lower Manhattan (via ferry from Jersey City, that is). And back.

This will be accomplished, but not with all the ease of a diesel's tool. For one thing, the price of tickets will increase.

How much? That's still undecided, says Commissioner Dwight R. G. Palmer — and then adds that New Jersey riders of the Reading recently agreed to a 25 percent increase. Whether they did this out of desperation or in admiration is uncertain.

In addition to the fare hikes, the Reading has agreed to accept a $42,000 subsidy for this year from the State. The company previously had refused to accept the subsidy because it said it would fall far short of meeting the deficit.

The present fares will stay as they are until January, the Commissioner anticipates. And the "Crusader" and the "Wall Street" will now continue their weekday shuffle until next September at least.

ABOUT THE LIBRARY . . .

Plans Under Study. "We have been asked to re-study the plans for the new public library with an eye to saving costs, and we are now doing so, with every expectation of coming to an agreement with Borough and Township officials," said Mrs. E. Baldwin Smith, president of the library's Board of Trustees this week.

Library trustees and Thaddeus Longstreth, architect, were asked to do the re-study after a meeting last Thursday with representatives of both municipalities. Mrs. Smith was called back on Monday night of this week to confer with Township Committeemen.

Mr. Longstreth and the trustees believe they can save 3,000 square feet by making a shorter building—that is, not so long from Wiggins Street south. According to present thoughts, this would be accomplished by reducing the adult area, retaining the second floor meeting room and leaving the children's department near the front door on the ground floor, where it now is on Mr. Longstreth's plans.

At $25 per square foot, this would mean a saving of $75,000, but since everything is reduced somewhat when square footage is reduced, the actual saving would be closer to $80,000, according to Mrs. Smith.

At Thursday's night's meeting, Ellwood W. Godfrey, Joseph Strayer and Robert Mooney represented the Borough, Mayor William L. Wilson and Engineer Frank Quinby, the Township. Joseph R. Nini, Mr. Mooney's opposite number, was unable to be present. The library was represented by Mrs. Smith, James Richmond and Robert Staples, librarian.

VOTE ON TUESDAY

Moment of Truth. A Presidential campaign with a lot of juice and sinew has made life interesting this fall for Princeton residents faced with a local campaign which has been spiritless, compared to other and more exciting years.

New Independent organizations have been popping up almost every week in proliferating and bewildering profusion: "Independents for Johnson," "Republicans for Johnson," "Scientists, Engineers and Physicians for Johnson - Humphrey" and —a new one just this week—"Mothers for Johnson."

TOWN TOPICS has an unprecedented number of political advertisements in this final pre-election issue: 19 separate display political ads totaling more than eight pages, plus ads with similar content scattered throughout the classified section.

To the average Princeton voter, the most interesting of these groups is probably the "Republicans for Johnson," headed as it is by the former Republican mayor of Princeton Township, R. Kenneth Fairman, and including as it does, names known to every Princeton citizen by their strong Republican ring.

For Election Results
Tuesday Night

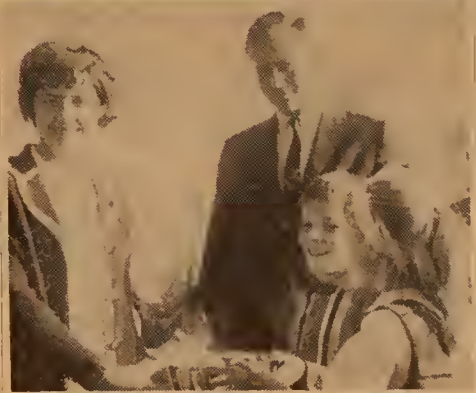
924-2200

Who Are You For? It is quite possible that many of these independents are not so much for Johnson as against Goldwater. And it is possible, too, that many disgruntled Republicans will simply sit by their television sets next Tuesday and not vote for either man.

However, observers who have watched elections in Princeton for many years believe that, for the first time since Woodrow Wilson, the Republican fortress of Princeton Borough may this year fall to the Democratic presidential candidate.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy lost Princeton Borough but he lost by only 198 votes (2147 to 1949). In the Township, he lost by 877 (2849 to 1972).



IT'S ALL FOR YOU! In honor of Lesley Bush, Princeton High's cheer-leaders raise the Olympic flag in traditional gesture during Monday's parade along Nassau Street. Miss Bush receives from Mayor Henry Patterson and two YMCA "Flying Fish" a silver bowl engraved "From the Princeton Community." The Flying Fish are (left to right) Dede Heneman and Billie Cook. (Staff Photos)

For the benefit of new voters, it should be pointed out that both Borough and Township are traditionally and overwhelmingly Republican, in contrast to Mercer County, which is Democratic.

New Look for Princeton? With Republicans either voting for Johnson or staying home, independents (often equated with Democrats anyway in the minds of some Republicans) voting for Johnson and a record registration of new voters voting for—who knows?—the political picture in Princeton looks fresher than it has for some time.

"Unprecedented" is the word used by registration officials to describe the onrush of new voters in Borough and Township. New Jersey's voting laws now give the right to vote in a Presidential election to any adult who has lived in a county more than 40 days prior to Election Day, a considerably more liberal provision than the one prevailing in 1960.

How will these new voters cast their ballots in Princeton? How will the new voters registered by the PAHR cast their first ballots?

How many Princeton voters will follow the example of the 95-year-old woman on Ewing Street who has voted Republican ever since women got the vote, and who announced to her family this fall that she is going to vote for Johnson?

Congress. At the Congressional level, Democratic incumbent Harrison Williams has been challenged by Republican Bernard Shanley for one of New Jersey's Senate seats, and Democratic incumbent Frank Thompson is tilting with Ephraim Tomlinson for the Fourth Congressional District designation. Observers of these two races believe that the failure of either Shanley or Tomlinson to repudiate Senator Barry Goldwater, has favored both Democratic incumbents.

The re-election of Frank Thompson to his sixth term isn't in much doubt. The Democratic Congresman carried every the Borough in 1960 (by 70 votes), and got more votes in the Township than any Democrat, losing by only 389.

Mercer County's Freeholders, Democratic for years, will not be challenged this year by their perennial antagonist, Mrs. Regina Meredith, out of the race for the first time since 1958. In her place are Republicans Lester Allen, defeated last year, Karl Weidel and Paul R. Petito.

Both Democratic and Republican parties are supporting the two bond issues, one for education and one for institutions.

At Home. In Princeton Borough and Township this week, candidates for Council and Committee—it is not a mayoralty year for the Borough—recapitulated their statements of the past five weeks.

Nicholas J. Bartolino and Enoch J. Durbin, Democratic candidates for Borough Council, urge again a teen-age canteen, a community swimming pool, a new library, and action on Princeton's traffic problem. "We have noted the continued lack of master plans from the University and the Borough," the candidates comment. "Statements that Princeton must preserve its residential nature are fine but planning before any more major variances slip through Council, must be the start."

Fred English and Alan Carrick, Republican candidates for Borough Council, (Mr. Carrick is running for re-election) suggest that zoning and planning boards, Joint Recreation Board, University and Open Space file copies of their plans, studies and so on, with the new library, providing Princeton with a clearing-house of information on current and future plans of both University and municipal agencies.

William Sloane, Democratic candidate for Township Committee, suggests that leveling off of the tax rate is "penny-wise and pound foolish," and accuses Republican Committeemen of being more concerned with the tax rate "than with the wholesome activities of our youth." Mr. Sloane also urges a civil rights commission, and in conclusion, says that, by appointing only Republicans to various Township boards, Committee is neglecting "a huge reservoir of untapped talent."

William L. Wilson, Republican candidate for re-election to Committee, reminds constituents of his support for the new library, the development of

EX-PRINCETONIAN HELD

Suspect in Thefts. John Glenn, 22, formerly of 145 John Street, has allegedly confessed to the theft last June of $16,281 in jewelry and cash from the Carter Road home of William R. Shillaber, New York jeweler. An inscribed gold cigarette case reportedly snapped the lid on Glenn after it had been found in the car he was driving in Anderson, S. C.

New Jersey State Trooper Steve Rosacha says Glenn, a one-time handyman at the Hun School, admits to having entered Mr. Shillaber's home in Hopewell Township and to having taken the cigarette case, valued at $475, a wrist watch, also found in the car, a $1,000 ring recovered in an Anderson pawn shop and other valuables. Anderson police arrested Glenn last month when a motorist complained that Glenn was acting like a drunken driver.

A suitcase was causing the car to weave, but the police continued their check when they found that Glenn was driving a rented car. Investigation showed that the car had been reported as stolen from a Princeton auto rental agency.

Trooper Rosacha and Detective Robert Fisher questioned Glenn recently in Greenville County, S.C., where he is being held pending a hearing on an FBI charge of transporting a stolen car across state lines. They reported that Glenn admitted the theft and told them he had sold most of the jewelry in Trenton, New York, Detroit and Anderson. The ring was recovered aft-

News Of The THEATRES

"THREE MEN" OPENS

Third McCarter Play. "Three Men on a Horse" isn't quite old enough; maybe that's the trouble. It wasn't written so long ago that it can evoke genuine nostalgia, it wasn't good enough originally to be vintage—whatever its age. In its present McCarter production, it is neither here nor there – neither contemporary nor historic.

Let us say now that the opening night audience enjoyed the farce right down to the finish line. Laughter was hearty, heavy and spontaneous and the actors must have felt a nice warming glow of response.

But the overall impression is one of unevenness and awkwardness, quite probably due to the difficulties involved in translating a comedy 30 years old.

The farce will play McCarter this Thursday at 7:30 and again November 5 with an 8:30 curtain.

Pick Us A Winner. The Three Men of the title are Magi whose star leads them to a bar where they find a writer of greeting-card verses named Erwin Trowbridge who has a sixth sense for picking the horses.

The Three Men like to pick horses, too; in fact, that's how they get the money to buy diamond bracelets for girl friends. Naturally, they seize upon Erwin and his parapsychological apparatus, and we go on from there.

The actors who play the Three Men are unquestionably the stars of the production. Whenever they are in charge, a kind of wonderful tarnish lights up the whole, and whenever Dustin Hoffman as "Frankie" has a line to say, the stage is lit with an unholy radiance.

Hoffman's "Frankie" is probably the most intact characterization ever to appear on a McCarter stage. Frankie is all of a piece, all five feet of him, right from the bowler so large it must rest on his outspread ears, down the stripes of his suit to the edge of his high-length jacket.

Because of his luminous performance and the fact that we have never seen him on McCarter's apron before, we suspect that he is an actor at all, but a fixture imported from Aqueduct to play himself.

His colleagues, Louis Zorich as "Patsy," the leader of the trio and David Tress as "Charlie," the gloom boy, are equally true and real, but leaving these three, we begin to hit trouble.

The Style of It All. Robert Blackburn has directed his cast to act the way comedy actors did in the '30's, and as we said before, that era is just too close. The acting style has not yet passed into folk lore like the mannerisms of a '90's melodrama; it is merely dated, and embarrassingly so, since it is still used by amateur groups in very small towns, and by high school actors who haven't got a very good coach.

To give you an example — a female character will lift both arms and give a single, limp-wristed "land sakes!" wave. Well, actresses haven't used that gesture since the early days of Marie Dressler, and on a contemporary stage, it is embarrassing.

Mr. Blackburn himself is properly obnoxious as Erwin's brother-in-law; Eve Roberts is costumed provocatively as Mable, the girl-friend who yearns for security and a slip-covered cottage but she has been asked to assume a preposterous mincing walk which would outrage any self-respecting floozie. Tom Brennan has made Erwin into Stuart Erwin.

One final question — why, McCarter, "Three Men on a Horse?" If the '30's were necessary to an overall view of the American drama, why not, in this presidential year, "Oi Thee 1 Sing"? Of course it could be done: remember "Showboat" last spring?

THREE ON A WEEKEND

"Streetcar" Coming. All three of the McCarter plays that have been introduced into the repertory so far, will play the boards this weekend.

"Three Men on a Horse" has been scheduled for this Thursday at 7:30; "The Great God Brown" for this Friday at 8:30 and "Death of a Salesman" for Saturday, also at 8:30. The O'Neill and Miller plays will be seen for the last times this weekend.

The fourth and final production of the season, "A Streetcar Named Desire," will open on Friday, November 13, with Louis Zorich, of the American Theater Company, in the role of Stanley Kowalski.

Jan Farrand will come to Princeton for the role of Blanche du Bois. Robert Blackburn will make his first major acting appearance of the season as Mitch, having previously directed himself in a minor role in "Death of a Salesman." Tom Brennan will direct the Tennessee Williams play.

DYLAN COMING

Another Record? When Bob Dylan came to McCarter a year ago, he set an attendance record, and the box-office expects that he may break it when he comes to Princeton on Saturday, November 7, as 12 FROM SAN FRANCISCO Ballet To Perform. Classic and contemporary dance styles will both be on dsplay when Ballet '64 performs in McCarter this Sunday at 3 p.m.

The company of 12 dancers is the smaller of two touring ensembles derived from the San Francisco Ballet whose members came to Princeton last spring. Within the complement are two of San Francisco's prima ballerinas: Sally Bailey and Sue Loyd.

For their Princeton appearance, dancers in Ballet '64 have chosen Robert Gladstein's "Vivaldi Concerto" and Joeelyn Vollmar's "Sonnet," to music by Rossini. The dancers will also present two works by Ron Poindexter: "Counterparts," to percussion accompaniment, and "The Set" to music by Dave Brubeck.

QUIZ: Spanish police chief Anthony Quinn (right) questions informer Raymond Pellegrin in his effort to capture guerilla leader Gregory Peck. A scene from "Behold a Pale Horse," showing at the Prince.

NEXT THE RUSSIANS In Film Series. Two of Sergei Eisenstein's greatest films will join for a double bill Monday at 8 at McCarter, in the International Film Festival.

"Potemkin," made in 1925, will be shown with "Ten Days That Shook the World," dating from 1928. "Potemkin" is the film that first brought Eisenstein to the attention of the film world, displaying as it does his treatment of mass rather than individual and emphasizing his use of montage.

"Ten Days That Shook the World" is Eisenstein's re-creation of the Russian Revolution and the ideas that supported it, showing the war, the Kerensky regime and the ten days that shaped the final form of the revolution.

KIWANIS BOOKS FILM On Pacific Northwest. "Adventure in the Northwest, second in the Kiwanis' travel - adventure film series, comes to the Playhouse at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, November 10. Princeton graduate Stan Midgley, winner of a number of awards for his Far West films, will narrate.

There are scenes of the High Sierras and action sequences showing Fourth of July skiing, the Seattle Sea Fair, Gold Cup hydroplane races and shooting the Rogue River rapids.

The early curtain is to accommodate school children. Admission is $1.50 adults; $1 all students.

THE GARDEN Seduced and Abandoned (through Tuesday) which surely should win some sort of an Oscar for "most repellant title," was produced by Franco Cristaldi and directed by Pietro Germi, who made "Divorce — Italian Style" the most acidly amusing film of the 1960's. Their current effort, sad to say, is a loud, windy, unwitting parody of its predecessor.

Its loosely-buttoned story concerns itself mainly with the tortured, tortuous and tortoise-like strivings of a Sicilian to save face when his 15-year-old gets done wrong by her sister's fiance. It's all played multo con brio with a constant clangor of family hassles, fights-and-chases and ferocious slapstick until the entire affair becomes a kind of seductio ad absurdum.

Nevertheless, the background details are vivid, and they are done in the black-and-white film medium in which Italian movie makers are unsurpassed. The musical score (which, of course, can add or subtract considerably from the fatal effect) is also commendable.

THE MAN BEHIND THE 'DEL': Fred Lehnert came to the United States from Cologne when he was 16 years old. His delicatessen in Princeton has always had the flavor and quality of an old-fashioned continental establishment — even now, when the shop glistens in shining new quarters in the 70 Nassau Street building.

IT'S NEW To Us

A GIFT FROM AUDUBON

Stony Ford Has Sale. Christmas gifts with motifs derived from nature are now on sale in the delightful house that serves the Stony Ford Bird Sanctuary as office and clubhouse. The drive out Pretty Broad Road is, in itself, worth the trip on a lovely autumn day, and the pleasant collection of gifts will give you something to bring home from the ride.

Placemats by Peter Scott come in a set of six, each with a different bird design—Black Ducks in the Sunshine, is one, and Canada Geese after a Squall is another. They are that good kind of plastic, easy to maintain but not Plastic in appearance.

Another collection of bird placemats is more formal in execution, displaying a small bird in each corner and a large one in the middle. To set them off, Stony Ford has arranged a table with dinnerware in bird design. The Carolina Turtledove, for example. Dinner plate, dessert butter plate and soup.

Perhaps the most striking offering is a black tray with inlaid birds carefully done in various woods to show how the feathers lie. Small white stones and inlaid gold lines serve where wood won't do the job. The big owl with inlaid "rhinestone" stars is particularly good, but you may prefer the pair of quail. Prices are $11-$17 for these handsome trays.

And while we're with the quail, how about that pottery bird, rounded and smooth, done in dark blue and oyster white or soft shades of grey-brown? $6 each for these.

Prices have been modestly scaled, by the way. For only $1.50 you may have a packet of six two inch painted wooden birds, the kind you pierce into a bit of wood in a flower arrangement. Or, you can pay $35 for a pair of duck bookends. Little stone-like barn owls, solemn and cute as can be, are $4 and $6.

The red-winged blackbird flies across a white tile trivet, joined on another trivet by a plover. Other trivets tell, one after the other, about "The 12 Day of Christmas," and to keep your kitchen a sanctuary, here's a natural linen towel with stylized tree and birds in darkest brown (or navy. An apron for $3 and a towel for $1.80, have been printed with quail and young, or a flashing cardinal.

The jigsaw puzzle of mallards, or the one with King Rail and Virginia Rail, will keep someone busy for a long time. Each puzzle is $2.25.

On the practical side of bird fancy, the Audubon head-quarters has suet cake holders, a robin shelter and a wren birdhouse, and, to everyone who comes, the full catalogue of gifts from Audubon national headquarters.

While you're browsing, of course, you can watch nuthatch and woodpecker busily working over the bird feeders outside every window. To reach Stony Ford, drive out Pretty Brook and watch for the sign on the left-hand side of the road The sanctuary is between Province L i n e and Carter Roads.

CHEESE, BLUE AND GOLD

At Nassau "Del." Having moved into quarters so sumptuous that you expect to find gold bullion instead of just bouillion cubes, the Nassau 'Del' has installed a collection of cheese worthy of its new expansiveness.

The new shop, in case you've been out of town, is the 70 Nassau Building, separated only by the fountain from Nassau Street.

Stilton is the cheese pride of the moment, nutty and rich with its flecks of blue, wedged against the Christian IX with its carraway seeds and the Chabichou with its characteristic goat texture. Taffel is here, and Banquet Tybo, Tomme de Savoie and Brie de Meaux.

Try the little three-inch Le Petit Bruleur de Loup wrapped in chestnut leaves, or the Rondin that's been rolled in grape seed.

Reblochon, from the Haute Savoie, the semi-soft tang of Pont L'Eveque or the unusual flavor of Sainflo, packed tight into a little drum . . . any of these will make you a collector of cheeses.

Fromage des Quatre Saisons is a soft cheese, each one of the four wrapped in its own gold foil. St. Paulin is a Port Salut style, a cheese with good keeping qualities.

Feta cheese from Greece, and Gjetost from Norway join the Danish blue, the F r e n c h

Roquefort, the German Muenster and the orgonzola to make a full wheel of eating pleasure.

The 'Del' has always been proud of its honies, and now in the new shop, they are better displayed than ever before. Pur Miel de France is a fir-tree honey from the mountains of the Cevenes and Vercors. And there's Dutch honey and Greek honey, and thick Green Mountain, Vermont, honey with the look of mayonnaise. We like the idea of Palmetto Palm honey, or — wait while we sneeze, honey — alfalfa.

Other delicate things to eat on this delicatessen are the Kieler herring in aspic, or any of the Aristocrat collection of Greek foods, like the Calamata olives, dark and red as plums, or the rock green olives (seven shelves of olives in this shop now!) or vine leaves stuffed with rice and spices.

Hickory smoked Pennsylvania Dutch bacon in a tubular hunk like sausage—what are you having for Sunday breakfast? Look at Catherine Clark's country baked bread, either home style, or corn meal, rye or oatmeal.

And the "to go" counter is quite as tantalizing as before, with loaves of dark rye waiting for your order. Flaky turnovers and that million-layer cake with its suave chocolate frosting. To say nothing of the aroma that comes from freshly made coffee

FOR THE CHILDREN

New Viking Furniture. Practical, well-designed, a lesson in esthetics to live with every day — that's the new line of children's bedroom furniture now at Viking, a shop one usually associates with high sophistication and the adult way of life.

Paleal birch with a slick finish trimmed with royal, bright red or yellow, this furniture has been designed to cope with the six year old, allow the 12-year old room to grow and provide a grown-up environment for the 16-year-old

It's Your King, Gertrude

Whether the kings and queens of Denmark really did use a chair like this for chess-playing, soliliquizing or plotting fratricide, we're not actually sure, although Viking Furniture swears they did.

What matters is that it's quite a chair, and we defy you to leave it alone! It's made like a captain's chair, with teak frame and dull-finish black leather upholstery on seat and across the captain's-style curving back.

You can sit in it straight and square. Or, you can turn around, straddle the chair like a saddle, lean your elbows on that upholstered back and lay your hook on the slanted teak reading shelf that protrudes from the back. Or, lay the shelf flat and put your chess board on it. (Ladies will have to wear either Capri pants or a full skirt. Can't do it with a short, straight skirt because we tried.)

Viking also has the chair in a foursome with a square slab of teak making a game table. Silliest game table you ever saw, with all the chairs pulled up to it backwards, so to speak, but you know how things were in Denmark.

Take the desk, for example. It is a modular unit, long enough to accommodate algebra homework and a transistor radio, too. Whenever you like, on the top, you set a couple of wooden cubbyholes connecting them with a long, top, you set a couple of plain birch board that serves as a shelf. Board is 48 or 78 inches long, depending on how many models you have to display.

The bunk bed is pared right down to sturdy essentials, with colored slats to give it lift. The chest has colored drawer fronts and long bar pulls, and like the other pieces, it is designed for anyaney right on up.

To underscore its new interest in young customers, Viking has a nine-foot oak climbing pole from Denmark made with seven rungs, each safely knobbed on the end Beanstalk, meet Jack!

For Daddy, there is a new suede chair, the leather stretched on a brushed aluminum frame and built up high enough to hold a weary head. A throw of real sheepskin comes with this chair, for some reason. Use it under your head or over your lap, or under your slippered feet However you employ it, the skin is a fine match for the deep olive of the suede.

For Mother, Viking has Bennington stoneware which is oven-proof and dishwasher proof but don't put it on a flame. Gold, blue or white, in that scrubbed, matte finish with plates built up at the sides like pieplates, and straight-sided cups.

For guests, Finland sends along some tall tumblers in glass as clear as a Finnish lake. Smoky blue or bronze, too, and a laughable little tumbler that won't tumble over because of the way it's weighted.

Everybody in the family will put things on a new cocktail table made of butchers' blocks five inches thick, resting on massive turned legs. This parquet oak top consists entirely of five-inch squares and could probably be used for chess, if you've got big men.

Table lamps are cork this fall, the dark kind of cork with a pocked surface, made in conservative bottle shapes with smooth walnut to contrast. A cylinder of cork with a long, long walnut neck is especially noteworthy.

Ceramic lamps are plain, too, in glazed colors like cobalt or deep rusty brown with spatters toward the bottom. All of these are tall and meant for a spacious room.

THE PLAYHOUSE

It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World (through Tuesday) is a three-hour and 14-minute film (plus intermission) presenting a legion of Hollywood comics in a lightweight excursion into frenetic fun. It is long, obviously, but it also is full of laughs.

The story itself is unimportant. Quite simply, for simple it is, it entails the search and seizure of buried treasure — followed by a long chase sequence which is wild enough to make a Keystone Kops caper seem like a game of statues.

Jimmy Durante, Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Terry-Thomas, Jonathan Winters, Buster Keaton, The Three Stooges and Stan Freberg are all members of the team, which more than once should have drawn a five-yard penalty for delaying the game. But, despite occasional lapses, "It's a Mad 4 World" has enough humor in it to amuse the majority of viewers in a more than adequate way.

News Of The Theatres

from the title, could be one of two things: boy-meets-Indians or boy - meets - bookie. It's neither. It's about the Spanish Civil War (the 1936 edition) et seq.

Two enemies (Loyalist Greg Peck and Falangist Anthony Quinn) keep fighting long after the bell. Peck, in exile in France, decides to risk a trip to Spain to see his ailing mother and, while there, to knock off police chief Quinn.

Quinn, hearing of this sets trap to erase Peck. A letter warning Greg is torn up by a kid messenger, who thereby inadvertently becomes Peck's bad boy.

Sure enough, Peck is killed and Quinn emerges triumphant. All these going-on are related at slow pace, but the climax contains an adequately suspenseful excitement.

er Glenn's confession. State Police anticipate that Glenn will be turned over to authorities in Pinehurst, N.C., on another charge of theft before being returned to New Jersey.

TO DIRECT RECREATION

Board Appoints Director. A months - long search ended last weekend when R. Donald Barr of Pelham, New York, accepted the post of Princeton's first professional recreation director. The appointment was announced by William Bonthron, chairman of the Joint Recreation Board.

In his new post Mr. Barr will help to guide the development of Community Park and will direct the recreational activities to be provided there. He will start work December 1, at a yearly salary of $9,500.

For the past three years, Mr Barr has been superintendent of recreation for Pelham, and before that he spent three years as director of activities for the Montclair Recreation and Parks Department. He was athletic director for the Naval Receiving Station in Washington, D.C., for two years.

Mr. Barr had both undergraduate and graduate training in recreation at Springfield College in Massachusetts. He is a member of the National Recreation Association and the American Recreation Society.

"Mr. Barr was eager to come to Princeton because of the challenge we can offer him," said Mrs. Richard Schoch of the Joint Board "Both Pelham and Montclair, where he worked before, are boxed in with no more land for recreation and no room to grow. Princeton, Mr. Barr feels, offers tremendous opportunity."

The new recreation director is married and has two young daughters.

TAKE $943 IN JEWELRY

From Parkside Home. A thief used a pillow case to carry off about a half-dozen pieces of jewelry sometime last week from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Thompson, 45 Parkside Drive. The items were valued at $943.

Township Police report that entry was gained by punching a hole in a screen door of a patio and then forcing a door to the house. All cabinets, drawers and closets inside the house were ransacked, they said. Also taken was a $15 handbag containing $5.

Police report a neighbor as saying she saw a man walking in Battlefield Park near the columns and heading toward the Parkside area during the five-day period in which the theft is believed to have taken place. Sgt. Michael Lisi and Ptl. Michael Kopliner are investigating.

University Again. The Borough had its share of thefts to report and once again, for the second straight week, the University was the major victim. On Wednesday, the police received four theft reports from the University, a $175 TV set from Wilcox Hall; a $250 vacuum cleaner from the basement of Nassau Hall; and two typewriters valued at $120 each taken from separate rooms in Lockhart Hall. The day before, police received a call reporting the theft of a vacuum cleaner from a custodian's closet in Fine Hall.

A second major stamping ground for theives, the Theological Seminary, was visited again, too. Robert Bonnell, first cook, reported that someone entered a kitchen window at the Seminary and rolled a 300-pound safe containing several hundred dollars in cash and assorted checks, out the back door. The kitchen is located on the ground floor.

Other thefts include a $100 music box taken from a wall display at The Cummins Shop, 98 Nassau Street, and a battery from a new car parked in a lot to the rear of Prince Chevrolet, 362 Nassau Street. Finally, a thief with specialized tastes stole a medical bag from a car parked in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station on University Place. It was the property of an eye doctor from Sea Girt, police said.

BLINDED BY LIGHTS

Driver Hits Mercer Bridge. William J. Chicoine, 42, of Morrisown, ended up hitting both sides of the Mercer Road bridge Saturday evening when he was blinded by the lights on an incoming car. He was uninjured.

Mr. Chicoine told Township Police that as he approached the bridge, driving about 40 miles per hour, the bright lights of an approaching car prevented him from making the turn at the bridge's approach. His 1964 station wagon swerved off one wall of the bridge, crossed over and struck the opposite wall and came to rest against a Public Service pole. His car was towed away.

ees of the Princeton Ballet Society.

Audrey Estey, director of the Ballet Society, has announced that classes in jazz for adults are being taught, in addition to the regular ballet classes Jerry Boss, dancer and choreographer, who has appeared in six Broadway musicals, instructs a class in musical comedy jazz in the evenings.

A recent addition to the faculty is Jean Morton Lucas. Mrs. Lucas teaches ballet technique, exercise and modern jazz in morning classes for women. She has also appeared in Broadway musicals but will be remembered here for her portrayal of Ellie in "Showboat".

COURT CLUB CONVERTED

To Be Alumni Offices. Court Club, one of the University's Prospect Avenue eating clubs, gently folded its napery last spring and went out of business. The reason was clear as consomme: not enough eaters.

Now, the handsome building at 93 Prospect Avenue is going to be converted into offices and entertainment facilities for the Princeton Alumni Council. Permission for the change was approved at Thursday's meeting of the Borough zoning board.

But the conversion of Court does not mean the imminent end of the club system, Princeton's hierarchal substitute for fraternities. According to University Planning Director John P. Moran, the clubs won't go out of business unless there is a substantial change in the University's present social structure.

As it is now, the situation remains about what it has been for the past four decades: the University needs the clubs just as much as the clubs need the University. And, until (if ever) the University constructs eating accommodations adequate to offer every undergraduate his mess of pottage, the clubs will be essential as grazing grounds for most upperclassmen.

Mr. Moran stated that the Borough will probably be asked to delete the Court Club property from the tax rolls once it becomes part of the University's tax exempt domain. The zoning board moved to protect Borough income from decrease in ratables with a conditional clause in its approval, requiring the University to compensate the Borough for the municipal services rendered to the property. The amount will be decided at a later date.

Also at Thursday's meeting, the board approved a variance sought by Victor Procaccini for an addition to his front porch at 101 Linden Lane. A request by Mrs. Leo R. Rodweller, 4

By Archimedes (Bernard)

Not so many years ago women had to lean on pomade and a miscellany of heavy dressings to keep their coifs in place.

In recent years hairspray has come into the picture. There are sprays for dry hair, oily hair, damaged hair, bleached and tinted hair — in fact, there is a spray for most any type hair or hair condition you might mention. Strangely, hairspray which is a life saver to so many women usually contains polyvinyl pyrrolidine — a true life saver developed in wartime as a plasma extender.

True hair beauty stems from nature . . . and the encouragement you give to nature! Here at TAVERNWOOD BEAUTY MANOR & COSMETIC SHOP, 69 Palmer Square West, we give your hair the kind of expert treatment that stimulates natural hair health and beauty. Come in soon and start looking the way you want to look. Phone 924-3983. Particular attention given to attractive styling for the mature woman.

HELPFUL HINT: If you use hairspray regularly (who doesn't?) don't buy willy-nilly. Select one formulated for your type of hair.

Facts You Should Know About Oriental Rugs

KAZVIN

Just prior to the second World War, the name Kazvin became a popular item in the rug market. However, Kazvins woven and named after the town of the same name, had carved a niche in rug history by presenting a weave that rivaled the finest Kashan technique. The contemporary Kazvins are woven in the town of Hamadan. They offer a high pile with good wool, good weave and in the main, an attractive medallion — and corner — design. They do not bear any resemblance to the tribal rug of the Hamadan area.

CANDIDATE MILLER IN TOWN: Congressman William E. Miller, Republican candidate for Vice-President, spoke of war and peace and of mice and men last Friday in Dillon Gym in an appearance before 2000-plus firm backers and gentle boosers. (Staff Photo)

Chestnut Street, to build a carport beside her home was deferred to give the board a chance to inspect the site.

MILLER MILD

In Speech Here Friday. Republican Vice - Presidential hopeful William E. Miller delivered a quiet lecture to some 2,000 auditors in Dillon Gym rather than the anticipated and customary harangue. Mr. Miller was generally so gentle in mien and meaning, indeed, that his text might have been labelled "An Address for All Occasions for Any Candidate."

He praised the two-party system, the American voter's responsibility at election time and a strong foreign policy. He deplored the Communists, fear ("If fear is to be our master, what shall we use for courage?) and apathy in elections ("In 1960, 20 million eligible Americans didn't bother to vote").

In his discourse on democracy, Mr. Miller even had a few nice words about the opposition. "We Republicans will never, never say that any Democratic President would press the nuclear button. If war comes, the button will have been pushed by a Communist."

He stated that: "Only a foreign policy backed up by strength will keep the peace." He added, "No man wants war, for a nuclear war would not leave enough survivors to rebuild the world."

He quietly pledged that, if the Republican party is returned to national office, it will do what it can to end the present conflict in Viet Nam, though he also admitted that the party now has no definite blueprint for peace because "we are not privy to the secrets of the government." He asserted, however, to the vocal skepticism of many, "that war will never be won until Barry Goldwater is elected President."

Loudest applause at the meeting, which was attended by about half as many (according to University proctors) as turned out for Senator Humphrey, came when Mary Karen Miller, the candidate's 17-year-old daughter, was introduced. The ovation was thunderous, non - political and completely non-partisan.

Goldwater Ad in Error.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I should like to point out an inaccuracy in the paid ad by the Citizens for Goldfater-Miller in last week's issue of Town Topics. The statement that the League of Women Voters agreed to sponsor a debate on national issues is incorrect. The League of Women Voters could not consider sponsoring such a debate because a policy against sponsoring any debate in which the candidates cannot speak for themselves. In other words, if the League were to sponsor a debate on presidential issues, the speakers would have to be President Lyndon B. Johnson and Senator Barry Goldwater, which in this case would be impractical.

There could, possibly, have been League sponsorship of a debate on a specific issue but in the absence of request from proponets of both candidates this, too, could not be considered. The League of Women Voters works with all political parties and never supports either a party or a candidate.

I would also like to clear up any misunderstanding that may have arisen from postcards sent by a Democratic group listing League Candidates' Meetings and affairs sponsored by the Democratic Party. These were sent without the Knowledge or approval of the League and did not indicate that candidates from both parties would be present.

The prime function of the League of Women Voters is the distribution of accurate information. In line with this policy, the League sponsored County and Local Candidates Meeting and mailed nonpartisan Election Information Sheets to all registered voters in the community.

Information, Please

To the Editor of Town Topics:

You did not publish our open letter to Messrs. Patterson, Wilson, Carrick and English last week asking them how they stood on the sale in Princeton Republican headquarters of "A Texan Looks at Lyndon" and "None Dare Call It Treason." Presumably you felt that the issue was closed when it transpired that the club had "run out" of the books and had decided last weekend not to reorder.

The transparent attempt by the Princeton Republican Club to save face and let the issue quietly die is not cause for much community encouragement. Unhappily it was not dead then and still survives now.

A large display advertisement praising and promoting the books remained on prominent display in Republican headquarters until last Friday. Its presence reaffirmed the Princeton Republicans' sanctions of this type of campaign material.

But a far more serious problem remains unresolved. In our letter to Messrs. Patterson, Wilson, Carrick and English we laid stress on their political accountability. "Messrs. Schoch and Erdman (who defended Republican promotion of the books) are neither holders of nor candidates for public office," we pointed out.

"As officeholders, candidates or both, you bear public responsibility for the conduct and tone of the Rpublican campaign in Princeton. If these books were introduced without your approval and behind your back, you can say so and publicly disavow them. If you approve of them, you owe to the community a public defense of their use in the campaign. How do you stand?"

This question is still unanswered. It should be answered if Princeton is to preserve its tradition of fair and honest competition between two responsible Parties.

If the Republican leaders of our community do not wish to be associated with the hatemongers and the panic-makers, they can say so. If they cannot or will not take this stand, then we can only assume that they are giving implicit sanction to this material which has shocked public opinion throughout the country, and indeed throughout most of the Republican Party.

AN OPEN LETTER TO

WILLIAM SLOANE

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR
COMMITTEE

Dear Bill Sloane:

During a national election year, candidates for local office are apt to find their campaigns taking second place to contests for the Presidency.

We think your own campaign for Princeton Township Committee has been first-class. For you have made clear from the beginning your belief that progressive, responsible government is inseparable on both national and local levels.

You have spoken out without hedging on the Township's urgent needs in:

- Recreation for our youngsters
- Housing
- Planning
- Traffic Control
- Human Rights
- Consolidation
- Bi-partisan representation.

As candidates go, you are "old Princeton." You know and love this town as only one can with roots far back in its storied past. You mean to conserve old Princeton's values.

But you are also "new Princeton." For you recognize that change is posing tremendous challenges for the future of this town. You mean to meet those challenges in keeping with your democratic and esthetic instincts. You mean to meet them in keeping with your experience as an attorney and member of the Open Space Commission, as a father and a PTA officer.

We salute your determination that Township Committee give voice to the talents and opinions of all segments of the Princeton community. We know your election will assure all Township residents of such a voice. We think your voice is needed on Township Committee just as strongly as we need LBJ for the USA.

Yours For A Democratic Vote,

ADVICE FROM DR. SPOCK

BENJAMIN SPOCK, M.D.

2040 Abington Rd.

Cleveland 6, Ohio

Dear Friend:

The event that made me wake up and work for the present test-ban treaty was the resumption of nuclear testing by the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. in 1961-62. An arms race which exposes our children to cancer and leukemia and birth defects, which squanders a large part of our productivity and which leaves us less secure each year seemed inexcusably immoral.

Now we have gained a test-ban treaty, a small symbolic step. It may lead to disarmament if we redouble our efforts. It will prove a misfortune if it lessens the sense of urgency of peace seekers.

In the past year a number of studies have revealed how much the cold war has upset our children. As many as a half of them in some schools expect nuclear attack. Young ones fear separation from their parents. Adolescents speak with bitterness of the possibility of their having no future at all or of giving birth to deformed children. Even more disturbing to me are reports of children acquiring fantastic ideas of the malevolence of the Communists. If we raise increasing numbers of Americans who expect the Communists to outwit us, outstrip us and outbomb us, they will be quite ready, as adults, to support a belligerent leader in any kind of madness.

Obviously we must work not only for disarmament and strengthening of the U.N., but for the building of trust between peoples. I invite you to join in this effort. As the essential first step, let us vote for Johnson and Humphrey.

Sincerely,

Benjamin Spock

play there since Monday, October 19.

As for the letter Borough Mayor Patterson said this Tuesday: "I have never received a copy of it." Township Mayor Wilson stated: "I wrote in answer to the Democrats that I had not seen the books at headquarters, that when I read about them in the papers, I called headquarters and was assured that the two books were off sale and would not be restocked."

Borough Councilman Alan W. Carrick stated: "I'm only running for local office, and I see no relevancy between that and any issues of the national campaign." Council candidate Frederick M. English said: "I can't approve or disapprove of books I've never read. I feel that it's my responsibility to campaign only on the local issues. I consider the letter to be an effort by the Princeton Democratic Club to push considered judgment and reason on local issues into the background and to replace them with emotionalism from the Presidential campaign.")

Smith Evaluates Goldwater.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As former United States Senator from New Jersey, I have been been asked by many of my friends in New Jersey and especially in the Princeton area what my opinion is of the present campaign, and especially how I appraise Senator Goldwater.

With regard to the first question, I regret to feel that the present campaign is not on the basis it should be. It appears to be a personal smearing attack on both candidates and up until very recently an avoidance of a proper discussion of the main issues.

I have just returned from the funeral services for our late beloved President, Herbert Hoover. I attended the services at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York, and also and especially the wonderful demonstration in the Rotunda of the Capitol in Washington.

The whole proceeding brought back to me my recollection of this great statesmanship and his influence on my entire thinking with regard to public affairs. In his defeats and in his successes he was the same Hoover, and it may be best expressed politically by his statement some years ago: "The first prequisites of the President of the United States are intellectual honesty and sincerity."

With regard to my thinking about Barry Goldwater, I have no hesitation in saying that he answers fully in my judgement these first prerequisites so defined by President Hoover.

With regard to the two candidates, I have had personal experience with both of them: have served with both of them and have the highest regard for both of them. In my service with Barry Goldwater I spent six years with him as a colleague in the Senate of the United States.

He had his first election as a Republican Senator the year I was reelected for my third term. From the beginning I recognized his sincerity and integrity and his dedication to what he believed. Basically I am a Republican and feel we should try, if we can as Republicans, to appraise the situation and decide in our own minds what is the soundest position for the Republicans to take at this time.

I hope that we can stop making this campaign a negative attempt to destroy somebody and I sincerely hope that we can make it positive and appreciate the fine individuals we have in both parties. They are great American assets. Irrespective of who is elected, I feel fundamentally that we, the American people, are responsible for the character and integrity of our nation, and that none of us is in a position to blame the candidates at this moment for what the situation is.

The world is in a desperately critical situation. With the Russian menace we are in constant danger. If we would preserve our freedom in this country, we must accept the responsibilities, and when this election is over we must be united and prepared to support whole heartedly our next President, whether Democrat or Republican.

Let me urge everyone to vote for the candidate of his or her choice based on calm, thoughtful, prayerful reasoning, and I beg everyone not to be influenced by the "hate" literature which is being circulated, and the personal "smearing" which should be intolerable to all Americans.

The American people have the great opportunity now and also the serious responsibility to inspire the world at this time of threatening crises.

H. ALEXANDER SMITH
(Former U. S. Senator from New Jersey)
81 Alexander Street

Objectivity Questioned.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have been reading with amusement the pious posturings of the halo-wearers who object to the "hate-literature" circulated by the local G.O.P. To object in solemn seriousness in print to the distribution of these "campaign pamphlets" (New York Herald Tribune Book Review) takes really fair-minded objectivity!

What said these virtuous Democrats, noble Independents and decent Republicans when vicious television commercials pictured a lovely child picking flowers, then being blown off the face of the earth by the irresponsible, itchy, trigger-finger of Senator Goldwater? Did they protest to the newspapers, write the Fair Campaign Committee, wire Democratic Chairman Bailey?

Who are the cheap, cynical ads in this week's Princeton papers, "We says No to Civilization and Survival!"? The implication is the same as that of the discredited TV commercials. Is this clean campaigning? Or is it an attempt to bring fear and hate to the minds of the less-informed?

What did these pious finger-pointers think of the vulgar dishonesty of the "Slick Dick" campaign in 1960? Clean campaigning?

The real classic in hate and fear is 32 years old. For many years and many campaigns after Herbert Hoover's term of office, F.D.R. and Truman speech-writers implied over and over that only Hoover's ineptness or callous disregard for people could have permitted the "Hoover Depression," which actually originated in Europe and continued until 1940.

It was a hate - slogan, a deliberate falsification to create votes. Yet countless people today still believe this cruel distortion of history, that President Hoover "caused" or "permitted" the depression to take place.

Now that Herbert Hoover is dead, perhaps the partisan hate-makers can let the "Hoover Depression" slogan die too.

Anyway, men, now we have the 'Goldfinger Nuclear War for a fair, clean campaign slogan. And WHO is calling WHO a "murderer?"

"Hate Literature Examined"

To the Editor of Town Topics:

What is "hate literature"?

We all deplore fallacious and salacious writing. We also may not like writing which forces us to face facts or a point of view we'd rather not face. Unfortunately, there is a tendency on the part of many to group these two kinds of writing under the single heading "hate literature."

Some of the Johnson liberals seem especially prone to this behavior. Perhaps it is because they cannot find anything to "expose" in Senator Goldwater's life except that he is a decent, patriotic citizen.

interested citizens to the editorials in the October 16 issue of Life, the October 24 issue of the Saturday Evening Post and in last Sunday's Herald Tribune. The argument that deserving, qualified Republicans must win, applies just as validly to the local level. I and by what I said I would infer, by virtue of a landslide vote for Mr. Johnson, to have the deserving and qualified Republicans running in Princeton Borough and Township lose.

Mr. Baumol has forgotten that Mayor Wilson (and Mayor Patterson) formally and publicly endorsed William Scranton before the Republican convention Messrs. Carrick, English, Wilson and Robson have run strictly on their records run strictly on their records and their qualifications and have expressed their views on all issues.

The "books" are out of Republican headquarters. The "moderate" wing of the party (which includes our candidates) has won (It is unfortunate that this public announcement in Town Topics last week was not in a more prominent place). However, no one has "read" anyone out of the party. On the morning of November 4 we will need all Republicans to help rebuild our party in this state and in this nation, if, indeed, the two-party system is to prevail.

If, after this election, virtually no Republicans have won, one of the possibilities would be an intra-party struggle within the Democratic party for control and it could be won by the left. President Johnson's attempt to make the Democratic Party all-inclusive and take it further to the "right" is his interpretation and does not necessarily represent the majority of the Democrats. Many Democrats are disenchanted with Johnson and are backing him only because there is no other place to go.

All the more reason for electing Republicans such as Keating, Scott, Taft, Romney, Percy, et al and Carrick, English, Wilson and Robson.

Mr. Baumol's argument regarding the lack of a two party system in the Borough and Township is naive and an old argument. There is also no two-party system as such in the county.

An expert was saying that although we have passed several milestones there is a long road ahead to space travel. How man can be conditioned to weightlessness for periods of weeks or months is one of the big questions, for man's entire body system, and brain are constructed especially to function under the conditions of earth's gravity and blanket of atmosphere. Then there is the question of protection not only from the rays of killing radiation, but from the meteors, large and small, which fly through space at tremendous speeds in fantastic numbers. On earth we are protected from most of them because our atmosphere burns them up before they land. And, for travel beyond the moon, for example, to Venus, at 17,500 MPH the elapsed time one way would be 5 to 6 months. Getting beyond our own solar system, let's say to reach the closest of all visible stars in the heavens, Alpha Centauri, which is about 4½ light years away, by rough computation, would take 121,500 years! For our part we're glad to be earth bound where we try so hard to be valuable to you. May we please demonstrate . . . to your considerable satisfaction and economy? MAIN CAMPAIGN ISSUES DEBATED: William Van Cleef (right) and Stanley Briant give their opinions on what they feel has been the main issue raised in the presidential campaign this fall. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: Which do you feel has been the most important issue raised in the presidential campaign: Civil rights? Morality in government? Extremism? Foreign policy? Other?

Where asked: Around town.

William Van Cleef, Point Pleasant, construction worker on McCormick Hall addition: I think its Appalachia - poverty, slum areas, drop outs in schools. Instead of spending all that money on buildings they should spend it to make conditions better for the people. They're building a library that will cost millions in Washington, D.C.; they could spend that money on those who are starving right now.

Stanley Briant, Nebanic, construction worker: The level of the campaigning itself. The unfair advantage the Democrats are using to their own advantage, in being the incumbents. Its dirty politics. I think in the Jenkins case the Democrats are trying to sweep a scandal under the rug. The whole issue of morality in government is involved.

Miss Joanne Garver, Mercer Street, statistical research: I think civil rights probably has been the main issue. At least it was until the Republicans made such a big thing about morality in government. But I still feel, overall, that civil rights has been the most important.

Lillie Benbow, Princeton, housewife: Civil rights is certainly first, when you take in the whole country. We don't feel it so much here in Princeton but it is the main issue, I feel, because it involves the entire country.

Mrs. Marian Steele, 185 Clover Lane, housewife: Actually, I feel the most important issue raised has been one of domestic policy. Goldwater seems to want to do away with so much progress that has been established in the last 12 years and more. Things like social security and care for the aged. On foreign policy issues, I think Goldwater acts impulsively; he frightens the people. I think another important issue in his position on decentralized strength in the government: do we want a strong federal government or do we want to return to states' rights?

Mrs. Robert A. Ruhin, 66 Cpyler Road, housewife: I feel human rights versus property rights. Goldwater typifies the value of property rights; the Democratic party—with some exceptions, notably the southern wing -typifies human values and whenever there has been any conflict between the two The Democratic party has tried to put human values first Michael Queenan, Hamilton Square, government employee: Extremism, because it seems as though that is the thing you hear Goldwater accused of most often. And he's even defended it, so apparently he must feel it's an issue.

L.L. Burns Jr., 105 Shady Brook Lane, retired: Morality in government. I know Mr. Johnson personally and I think he's a crook of the first order!

Miss June Wallace, Lambert House, Princeton Hospital, registered nurse: Probably civil rights. To me it is, anyway. I feel very strongly about it.

Mrs. Gail Arnberger, Hibben Apartments, housewife: I would say extremism but I feel it might very well become morality in government with this Jenkins case. I think this has hurt the Democratics.

Mrs. Stanley Tarr, Cranbury, housewife: Civil rights—it's personal involvement for me. We are interested in this as a family.

J. S. Bell, Graduate College, graduate student in Geology: Foreign policy. I'm from England myself and I think the recent British election raised a lot of questions that will be looked into. Of course there's the change of power in Russia, too.

John Kimball, Colonial Club, Class of 1965: As of right now, foreign policy. It relates to extremism in that Goldwater's foreign policy statements are being questioned. There is also the reverse: the Republicans are questioning Johnson's ability in foreign policy since he worked a great deal with domestic affairs and with the legislature.

Mrs. John J. Roberts, 68 Edgehill Street, designer: Morality in government is THE issue whether people realize it or not. That's really the foremost issue of this particular election. And I hope it will determine their thinking when they go to the polls.

John Scholte, Princeton Theological Seminary: Actually, I feel the campaign has devoted itself too much to personalities and very little to the issues. I'd say foreign policy more so than the others because I feel it is more of an issue. I do think there is some legitimacy in the questions that have been raised by both sides on foreign policy.

Randall Chastain, Holder Hall, University junior: Extremism. It seems to me that American government traditionally has not been run by men motivated by a kind of extremism represented by people on both sides of the political spectrum today. I think this is important because it brings to the attention of the people that there are large sections not confined to any one party — they exist on both the left and right. I feel very strongly that these pockets of extremism could undermine the government.

Republican votes for President Johnson

We, the above-named Princeton Republicans, have reached a difficult decision: to vote for President Johnson on November 3, while supporting and voting for the rest of the Republican ticket.

This decision came only after a long, painful period of soul-searching and self-examination.

We can, however, see no alternative.

To vote for Senator Goldwater would be to vote for the demise of the Republican Party as we know it today, and for the ultimate destruction of the two-party system in America.

To abstain would be to burden other citizens with what is properly our fair share of responsibility.

These things we cannot do.

We can, however, take heart in noting particular areas where President Johnson appears to be in general agreement with the basic tenets of Republican philosophy; often, in fact, in greater agreement with them than is his opponent, Senator Goldwater.

1. Civil Rights.

Speaking at Gettysburg last Memorial Day, President Johnson said: "One hundred years ago the slave was freed. One hundred years later the Negro remains in bondage to the color of his skin. The Negro today asks, 'Justice.' We do not answer him—we do not answer those who lie beneath this soil—when we reply to the Negro by asking 'Patience.' "

What is Senator Goldwater's position on this issue? It is equivocal, to say the least. This is especially unfortunate in view of the fact that the Republican Party has historically been the party of civil rights. It was founded on an anti-slavery platform. The first Republican president was Lincoln. Republicans campaigned for the rights of Negroes during Reconstruction.

2. Nuclear Policy.

Speaking to the United Nations General Assembly on December 17, 1963, President Johnson said: "The United States wants to see the cold war end...once and for all; the United States wants to prevent the dissemination of nuclear weapons...the United States wants to press on with arms control and reduction."

This is identical to President Eisenhower's position on the nuclear question. In fact, it might fairly be said that the search for a detente began in earnest during the years of his administration.

Where does Senator Goldwater stand on nuclear policy? On August 29, 1961 (as quoted in the Congressional Record) he said: "I hope the Administration will call for an immediate resumption of the [nuclear] tests. Frankly, I do not care what the rest of the world thinks about us..."

3. Free Enterprise.

In his book, My Hope For America, President Johnson says: "Our free enterprise system has met and surmounted the grave challenges of the past. Our ability to meet new challenges in the midst of a rapidly changing technology and a rapidly growing population is a test of America's future vision and vitality.

"Capitalism in America is what it is today because of the initiative, the enterprise, and the responsibility of our free system. But it is also what it is because of the course that we have chosen for this government to follow.

"One reason our enterprise system is functioning successfully is that we have been doing in Washington many of the things so long needed to lift off the burdens of the past. Government seeks not to be a dictator but a moderator, not a master planner but a faithful public servant, not an agent for control but an agent for freedom."

4. Foreign Policy.

In My Hope For America, President Johnson makes the following statement: "Our firmness at moments of crisis has always been matched by restraint, our determination by care. It was so under President Truman in Berlin, under President Eisenhower in the Formosa Straits, under President Kennedy in the Cuba missile crisis—and it will be so as long as I am President."

This is the kind of enlightened bipartisan foreign policy that has been the hallmark of modern Republicanism. It was first propounded, in fact, by Republican Senator Arthur Vandenberg in 1945.

It mustn't happen again!

When the returns are in and Barry Goldwater has been defeated, start working hard to make 1968 a G.O.P. year. Join your local Republican club. Give generously of your time and financial support. For only in this way—by playing an active, personal role in day-to-day Republican affairs—can you be sure of breaking the Goldwater grip on your party, and having an outstanding Republican candidate on the ballot in the next Presidential election.

Split your ticket, not your party. Vote for President Johnson.

Why I Plan to Vote

Republican

By Hyman L. Battle Jr.

At the heart of Sen. Goldwater's program is his expressed intention to allow the individual to regain the dignity which he has lost over the last several decades. As we are only 20 years from 1984 this opportunity cannot come to soon.

Dignity of the individual is the main characteristic that distinguishes a free man from an enslaved man. It means the right of choice, the right of self determination, the right of self-discipline and the right to be an individual complete in himself rather than an incomplete undistinguishable part of a whole.

Anyone who has seen the efficiently controlled city of the future created by General Motors in its "Futurama" Exhibit at the World's Fair must fear for his dignity in the brave new world rapidly approaching.

Unlike past and present administrations which have dealt with ideologies by decrees of enforcement, Sen. Goldwater proposes that the dignity of which I speak is not to be created by legislation or by executive proclamation, but rather by the return to the individual of the responsibility for his own destiny which is after all the price for his dignity.

Since dignity, responsibility and individuality are not generally considered to be realistic campaign issues, is all this simply rhetoric in support of a candidate? I do not think so, for:

Why do we seek a national purpose unless we find a void in our own lives?

Why are we confused by the lack of morals in our society and among our children unless there is a lack of responsibility in our own lives?

Why are the streets of our country filled with violence unless there is frustration in ourselves?

Why do we want the underprivileged, the sick and the aged cared for by the federal government unless we are uninterested in assisting them ourselves?

Why do we allow the federal government to assume our own responsibilities and prerogatives unless we are simply too lazy to assume them ourselves?

We are indeed afflicted as a nation—by indolence, indifference and inertia for if we shouldered our responsibility and, once more regained our dignity we would not have to ask these questions. But because we are so afflicted, we rely upon an administration which will make up for our own deficiencies by the simple expedient of passing a new law.

Whenever something is wrong in our lives and in our society, we cry "there ought to be a law . . . " But what we fail to appreciate is that, by definition, every law passed must result in the loss of rights by at least some of us. Sen. Goldwater recognizes this, and it is his program to reduce the web of laws which entangle our lives rather than to increase them.

This does not imply abandonment by government, only the restriction of government to its proper sphere of activities, a sphere determined by the rights of our citizens and not by their needs.

For the right of self-determination under a government which acknowledges that such is my right and not my privilege, I support Barry Goldwater for president.

Democratic

By R. W. van de Velde

I am not only going to vote against Goldwater and Miller whom I consider very dangerous men, but I am voting for President Johnson and Senator Humphrey.

I share a double fear with thoughtful Republican friends. One fear is that there is appalling danger in putting into positions of supremex responsibility men who appear to have a childlike faith in personal hunches and off-the-cuff guesses. The second fear is that continued control of Republican Party machinery by the extreme and radical Right Wing destroy the GOP as a viable "other party." Americans who believe in democracy believe in a real two-party system — a system in which each party has enough strength and is close enough to the main currents of American though always to have a chance of winning any election.

Republican leadership in 1964 does not represent that kind of broad "other party." It is a slate representative rather, of the extreme and rabid fringe of frustrated and angry souls who either do not understand or do not want 20th Century democracy, and/or who do not understand the 20th Century World, and who want America to withdraw from it or fight it into submission and ultimate destruction.

That is why, of course, we have seen prominent Republicans here and throughout the country publicly disavow their momentary leadership.

Now to the question, why be for Johnson and Humphrey? First, Senator Humphrey. Here is an eloquent spokesman, skilled negotiator, highly educated and thoughtful leader; a man of very broad experience in both domestic and international affairs. Senator Humphrey, former teacher of political science, fully understands that the practice of politics is the art of the possible. Senator Humphrey, thinker and humanitarian, never permits the practical necessity for reasoning and compromise to dull the brightness of such eventual goals as equal opportunity for all men, and a just and lasting peace for all the world. A true liberal in the old La-Follette tradition, a statesman of the first rank, Senator Humphrey has the brains and the courage and the skill to be a great Vice President.

People who profess the democratic process must believe in the validity of mind over emotion, of persuasion over coercion. They must believe in the possibility of change and perfectability of man. Therefore it is wrong to blame a man for his past views while ignoring his present views and actions. Some northern liberals tend to downgrade President Johnson because he is (or was) a Southern who once held views common to the society in which he was born and bred. It would be most extraordinary had Citizen - Congressman - Senator Johnson not held broadly with southern views and customs.

What is truly remarkable and most noteworthy about

Is The Democratic Administration "Soft on Communism"?

The easiest way of deciding is to let the record speak for itself.

1. The Administration has staked its foreign policy on the assumption that Communism is "mellowing," that we can "do business" with it, and that we can find areas of "accommodation" and overlapping interest with it. That is the theory propounded by State Department Policy Planning Chief Walt W. Rostow, expressed on several occasions by Johnson, and spelled out by Humphrey.

2. According to a report in the "Chicago Sun-Times" for March 30, 1961, Rostow advised the Administration to concentrate on long-range missiles at the expense of "first-strike" weapons like manned aircraft and intermediate-range missiles because the latter were offensive to the Soviet Union. Just such an alteration in America's strategic arsenal is the policy of the Administration.

3. An Administration consultant named Vincent C. Rock has suggested that America "consider assisting Soviet agriculture" in order to build up the Communist economy. A memorandum from the State Department says this policy is already being followed.

4. In pursuit of that policy, the Administration has sold wheat to the Soviet Union, underwriting with taxpayers' money the credit arrangements by which the deal was consummated. Senator Humphrey says he wants to see more such trade in the future.

5. The Democratic Administration has helped pay the delinquent UN bills of Communist nations who refused to honor assessments for military action in the Congo.

6. IN FEBRUARY 1963, it was learned the Democratic Administration, through America's 40% support of the United Nations Special Fund, was subsidizing an agricultural aid project in Cuba.

7. At about the same time, it was revealed that the Administration, through America's support for UNESCO, had underwritten a propaganda booklet by two Russians, attacking Western nations and calling the USSR a "brotherhood of free and equal peoples."

8. In August 1962, UPI reported "the United States will continue to supply Communist Cuba with funds through the Pan American Health Organization." Delegation leaders, including U.S. Surgeon General Luther Terry, had quashed a move to cut off aid to Cuba. The wire service concluded that "the result is that Cuba will continue to receive PAHO funds, 66% of which are provided by the United States."

9. The Democratic Administration lifted an executive order preventing the flow of Communist mail into American homes, with the result that Red propaganda can travel to unsuspecting American prospects, subsidized by the American taxpayer.

10. The Administration covered up for State Department employee William Wieland, who had kept the lid on important information establishing the Communist connections of Fidel Castro.

11. The Administration harassed and persecuted another employee, Otto Otepka, who objected to the privileged treatment accorded Wieland and who demanded a general tightening up of security standards. The Administration demoted Otepka, ransacked his papers, and bugged his telephone; certain of its officials then testified falsely to a congressional committee about what had been done.

12. The Administration has ordered the destruction by burning of security records in 20 local State Department offices around the country, reducing access to security data and leaving the only files with the same bureaucrats who defended Wieland and persecuted Otepka.

13. The Administration altered passport rules, allowing Communists to enter and leave the United States with greater ease, a move which drew the fire of the late Rep. Francis E. Walter, himself a prominent Democrat.

14. The Democratic regime has "muzzled" U.S. military officers, deleting from their statements remarks which might prove offensive to the Kremlin.

15. The Administration violated a pledge of support to the anti-Communist government of Prince Boun Oum in Laos, withdrawing crucial aid grants to force a "coalition" government with the Communists.

16. The Administration pulled the rug from under America's ally in Vietnam, President Diem, cooperating in the coup d'etat which brought his overthrow and murder and which plunged the country into a descending spiral of confusion, crippling the war effort.

17. President Johnson gave the Communists a 90-minute advance warning concerning a crucial counterattack in the Gulf of Tonkin.

18. The administration's principal foreign policy spokesman in the Senate, J. William Fulbright, believes the chief problems of government today may be to restrain the anti-Communist tendencies of the American people. He also believes America should certify the permanence of Fidel Castro's dictatorship in Cuba and be prepared to show greater "flexibility" toward Red China.

19. Americans for Democratic Action, of which Sen. Humphrey is a former national chairman and a present member, urges America to move toward recognition of Communist China. The same stance is taken by a number of Administration advisers.

20. Johnson legislative lieutenant James Roosevelt, congressman from California, is editor of a book called "The Liberal Papers," one chapter of which says the pressures of the Cold War make it "difficult" for "decent" Americans to be "outspokenly and genuinely anti-Communist."

SOFT ON COMMUNISM? Accommodation? Appeasement? Whatever terms we choose to employ, that list of 20 items makes it clear Goldwater's charge is founded on fact.

this man is the change which has taken place in his mind and in his heart in the last few years. What has happened to him is precisely what we hope will take place in the minds and hearts of all Southerners. Why do some of us now downgrade him because he saw the light and was led by it sooner than most? Indeed, this is the mark of the leader, the sign of thoughtful response to the growing responsibilities of increasingly important public office.

Here is a man who buried personal ambition and put aside personal disappointment to serve — and to serve well — as Vice President to the young man who had defeated him for the nomination. Here is a man who, with tremendous dignity and almost complete self-effacement, led his countrymen in mourning their dead young President. Here is a man whose mastery of the national political process and whose steady hand in international affairs let him assume the office of the Presidency and assume the full responsibilities of that office with a certainty that reassured an uncertain Nation and clamed a troubled World.

If he had done no more than that — avert immediate and overwhelming disaster — Lyndon Johnson would deserve election in his own right as President. But he has done more. This "Southerner" pushed a Civil Rights Law through a deeply divided Congress. He pushed a mammoth tax reduction through the same Congress. These and other laws passed in the last ten months were ones, it is true, which were started under President Kennedy. But this same Lyndon Johnson, whom some liberals tend to question, persuaded the Congress to enact an Anti-Poverty Law designed to start a systematic war against the national cancer of chronic poverty and its causes. This same Lyndon Johnson preceeded and followed the enactment of the Civil Rights Law with repeated, reasoned appeals to his fellow Americans to make that law work. He has even taken this appeal personally (and courageously) into the Deep South.

And just last week, in the face of the grave events in Russia and Red China, the President has immediately, publicly reaffirmed basic American foreign policy and has once more reassured a worried nation and world about America's strength and peaceful intent, about her steadiness and her good judgement.

That's the kind of a President we want; that's the kind of President we need. Vote for Lyndon JOHNSON and Hubert HUMPHREY.

FDR AIDE GIVES PAPERS

To University Library. Some 60 file drawers containing the personal papers of David E. Lilienthal are being given to the Princeton University Library for use by scholars.

Mr. Lilienthal served as Tennessee Valley Authority administrator, as first chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and as organizer and chairman of Development and Resources Corporation. His personal journal, "an account kept almost daily since 1931, serves as a central thread to the documents. Two volumes of the Journal, comprising the TVA and AEC years, were published this month by Harper & Row.

The Lilienthal papers, President Robert F. Goheen said, "greatly enrich" the new Center for studies in 20th Century American Statecraft and Public Policy. Professor Robert A. Lively, Center director, termed the papers "a major archive of 20th Century history."

Also supporting the Center's program are the voluminous papers of Bernard Baruch, John Foster Dulles, James Forrestal, Adlai Stevenson and Woodrow Wilson, among others.

PORTABLE COOKOUT: William Taylor, affectionately and widely known to Princetonians as "The Jigger Man," did a rushing business during the '20's and '30's with a charcoal grill on wheels. His bacon buns and hot dogs, which he dispensed with skill and unfailing good humor, made those two uncomplicated foods taste like an epicure's delight. His usual location, as shown here, was across from the old Balt on Nassau Street.

Mrs. Roland T. Ely and Mrs. Hibben Ziesing are co-chairmen of the three-day "Christmas Boutique," sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Princeton Hospital.

Ten exclusive shops from Connecticut to Florida will display their wares. "I particularly wanted to invite exhibitors who would not compete with local merchants," Mrs. Ely said. "We have a wonderful variety in this area, and I've made sure that the shops in the Boutique won't carry anything available locally."

The exhibitors include the Close Shop, Frances Inc. of Wilmington, Garver Sweaters of Baltimore, The Horse, Wilmington; Marian Michael of Naples, Fla., Lester Handbags of New York, the Pear Tree, Bryn Mawr; Rappaport's Toy Bazaar of New York, Tiffis of New Canaan and Viola, Stonington, Conn.

Items range from antiques to country clothes, one-of-a-kind tapestries to dining accessories, leather goods, knits and Christmas decorations.

The Christmas Boutique will also include a tour of the historic house. Hours are from 10 to 6, admission is $1. Proceeds go to the $150,000 pledge made by the Women's Auxiliary to the Hospital Building Fund.

This year, New Jersey Bell is spending $133,000,000 on construction to help meet the growing needs for telephone service in our state. There'll be a new central office building in Cherry Hill. A new electronic central office in Succasunna is nearing completion. And over 200 other major projects are under way in many parts of the state. They involve not only brick and steel, but thousands of miles of wire and cable. Plus millions of dollars' worth of new equipment. And thousands of jobs. All this building for the future makes an important contribution to our state's economic welfare right now. You might call it our most important by-product. THREE UP, FOUR TO GO

As Another Road Trip Looms. Now undisputed possessor of first place in the Ivy League, Princeton's football team is in the enviable position of knowing that if it can somehow win all the rest, there is nothing any of its opponents can do to catch up.

The order is a big one, of course, and the assignment is complicated by the fact that not only will all four of the Tigers' remaining opponents be pointing particularly to upset them, but two of the remaining contests must be played on the road. The first of these is set against Brown at Providence Saturday, with a starting time as late as 2 o'clock despite the fact that daylight saving has ended. If the usual murky fall Rhode Island weather prevails, a drawn-out contest could be affected by the fast gathering dusk.

..Princeton's immediate problem is that of falling prey to a team with high scoring potential while it is looking ahead to November games with its traditional Big Three opponents. It was just a decade ago that Brown last defeated the Tigers, coming from behind to win on its own field by 21-20 in the final quarter. Coach John McLaughry will have his team pulling out all the stops in an effort to duplicate the feat.

Brown will field a team that includes not one but two good passers — both of whom can also run — and the league's top pass-catching end. Quarterback Jim Dunda actually has more completions in Ivy action this year than Columbia's Archie Roberts.

Bob Hall, a standout quarterback last season until he broke his leg in Palmer Stadium, is in shape again and the ability both of them have to throw to capable receivers can raise considerable hob. All-Ivy John Parry is the league's leading receiver — he caught passes from Dunda for both of Brown's touchdowns here last fall in the 34-13 decision that went to the Tigers.

The Rhode Islanders lost only a half dozen lettermen by graduation, but the departures were the solid core of their interior line and the replacements haven't measured up so far. Brown was leading both Dartmouth and Yale at halftime, but failed to make the grade defensively in the final two quarters.

QUICK LOOK AT BROWN

OFFENSE: High potential. Good passing blended with capable running.

DEFENSE: Unimpressive to date. If it matched attack, Brown would have been title threat.

CHIEF ASSET: Jim Dunda and Bob Hall can both run and pass with league's best.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Tackle and guard have been season-long trouble spots.

TYPE OF ATTACK: Wing T.

In the post-war years, the Bruins have made a habit fairly often of catching Princeton looking ahead to its Big Three games, although it must be said that with the exception of the one-point upset at Providence in 1954, Brown has not had anything to show for its efforts in the victory column. It will probably take a Tiger attack that is good for at least three touchdowns to prevail, as the Bruins' scoring potenial is a great deal higher than Colgate and Penn, back-to-back shutout victims at Princeton's hands.

PENN WAS MISERABLE

Quakers' Attack Non-Existent. It is difficult to recall when Princeton outclassed a team as thoroughly as it did Pennsylvania in walloping the Quakers, 55 to 0, Saturday at Franklin Field. It is the most one-sided beating any Ivy team ever gave another in the nine years since the league became formal, and the most lopsided victory the Tigers have achieved over an Ivy opponent in the era dating back to World War I.

Compounding the situation is the fact that Princeton still is not the offensive power it was last year and doesn't begin to match the strongest Tiger elevens of unbeaten years. Yet during much of the second half, Dick Colman was using players fourth and fifth on the depth chart in an effort to keep from humiliating John Stiegman. The eager Tiger reserves, who can hardly be told to do anything but their best, did so — and the score kept getting higher and higher.

As for the "multiple offense" that Stiegman installed when he derricked the single wing, it has produced just seven points in the last four games. Against Princeton on Saturday, it carried the woebegone Quakers across midfield just once, when they penetrated to the Tigers' 44 on the game's next to last play.

Penn made four first downs, was held to a total offense of 86 yards and completed one more pass (5) that it had intercepted. After five games, it so totally impotent that it appears unlikely to come within three or four touchdowns of any of its remaining opponents (Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Dartmouth), and after four straight losing seasons, must have a morale problem of the worst sort to go with its personnel and coaching difficulties.

The aura of defeatism has seeped up to the press box at Franklin Field. In the fourth quarter play-by-play, the notation on a Penn kickoff return reads:

"Gogolak kicks off to Penn 1, Owen returns to Penn 5 as blockers suavely and politely step aside."

A little later on, Bill Potter, a sophomore who had played

Should you buy now? Or can it be put off safely if both husband and bride are working? The wise thing is to buy now. Postponement till you're older means higher premiums and the risk of poor health striking in the meantime. Someday too, that second income may stop, making it doubly important that a new mother be guaranteed a living income—an income enabling her to devote full time to raising that precious new addition.

The best buy for the young family is permanent insurance. It provides that most important guarantee of family income. In addition, it'a a savings plan providing cash in an emergency and funds for long-range objectives such as a university education for a son.

A Look at the Ivy Race at the Half-way Mark

While Princeton has the only perfect record in the Ivy League as the eight teams reach the half-way mark by playing their fourth game of the schedule on Saturday, the Tigers will inevitably spend considerable time in looking over their shoulders.

As the standings show, the race is beginning to take the form anticipated for it, with the Big Three and Dartmouth now the top four teams, and Brown, Cornell, Columbia and Penn trailing. Brown may go higher, Harvard may go lower, but Dartmouth, Yale and Princeton appear to be the top three.

In the sense that they have the easiest November schedule, the Indians have a good deal going for them. Favored to trim Yale in the Bowl Saturday, if they do so, they need only turn back Columbia, Cornell and Penn next month to be assured of a 6-1 record — certain to be good enough for a tie for the title.

Having played two of the toughest teams in the league, Brown could make a run for it by beating Princeton Saturday and then finishing 5-2 by conquering Cornell, Harvard and Columbia. Last year, 5-2 marks earned Princeton and Dartmouth a first-place tie.

For the first time in Ivy history, the title may be decided by the foot in football. Yale's Chuck Mercein, Columbia's Ed Malmstrom and Princeton's Charlie Gogolak have all kicked three field goals in one game this season, all from distances more than 40 yards out. Brown and Harvard have posted respective 3-0 victories over Penn and Columbia.

Sports In Princeton

with the Tiger jayvees earlier in the day, looked like an all-American as he sailed around end for 14 yards and Princeton's seventh touchdown. Gogolak promptly booted the point; on the play-by-play summary, the disgusted Penn pressbox tenant noted:

"Princeton 48, Bryn Mawr 0."

Evaluation Difficult. While it is unfair to say that Penn's ineptness was wholly responsible for Princeton's showing, the Tigers must do well against a solider team like Brown before a final evaluation on their November chances can be made. At Philadelphia Saturday, there were too many missed tackles and too many receivers left uncovered to make it likely that Princeton had polished its offense to blinding brightness in the short week since the Colgate game.

There is no question, however, that the victors' blocking is improving, and it was a pleasant sight for Princetonians to see five of the last six passes their backs threw completed for good gains after Don McKay had serious trouble on his first three. Eventually, he left the game with a 4-for-7 mark and a total offense performance of 126 yards — good enough to make him the Ivy League's top player in this department.

After playing Penn on no better than even terms in the first quarter, the Tigers drove 67 yards in seven plays for the first TD, which came on a ten-yard pitch from McKay to end Jack Singer. Four plays later, corner-man Don Roth grabbed a fumble in mid air and raced 19 yards for another score, and when a 54-yard march followed the next time the Tigers got the ball and McKay dove into the end zone to make it 21-0 at the half, all that remained was to play the contest out.

In all, eight players scored a touchdown apiece, Gogolak failing to convert once because of a bad pass from center. The Tigers ripped off 25 first downs, ran for 360 yards and rolled up the highest score either team has posted in the series since 1889.

If Penn were a non-Ivy opponent, charity would dictate concluding the rivalry at the earliest possible moment.

EWING 6; PRINCETON 0

PHS Loses Aiken Too. At least the weatherman cooperated. It was a beautiful day for football Saturday, but little else went right for the Princeton High School football team as it lost 6-0, to visiting Ewing High School.

It was indeed an afternoon of shadows for the Little Tigers. Not only did they lose their second game in five starts and a chance to gain ground in the Southern Division of the Central Jersey Group IV conference, but they lost the services for the rest of the season of their fine co-captain and fullback, Bill Aiken.

"That was the worst thing of all," said PHS coach Dick Wood. Aiken had led in scoring this season for the Blue and White with three touchdowns.

Coming up for PHS will be its final meeting in a long series with Somerville High School. The game will be played at Somerville, startig at 2.

Commenting on Somerville, Wood said that PHS had lost to Somerville "more consistently than to any other team. I used to think it was because we always played Somerville right after the Trenton game and that, inevitably, though we tried not to, there was a let down. (This fall, the Ewing game followed the meeting with Trenton.)

Hard to Evaluate. This year, Wood said it was a little hard to evaluate Somerville. It was trounced, 33-0, last weekend by a strong Phillipsburg eleven and Wood's scouts said it was difficult to assay Somerville during the one-sided contest.

"I don't think they are any better than they were last year (PHS battled Somerville to a 12-12 tie in 1963) and I don't think they are any better that Ewing, but of course Ewing is a pretty good team. Now with Aiken out it's a little different story as far as we're concerned."

Those planning to attend should leave early. According to Wood, Somerville football is a big thing in that area, since the town does not have a university team. "The papers are full of the coming game all week," he said. "An independent, Somerville plays night football almost exclusively. We are probably their only afternoon opponent," said Wood.

Against Ewing PHS played lethargic football, especially in the first half. Throughout the first 24 minutes, PHS moved for only one first down. The ball handling was bad on both sides, Ewing fumbling four times, losing three and PHS losing one of two.

Two outstanding plays, an offensive and a defensive maneuver, punctured the dullness. Early in the second period, Bill Laarz, Ewing's outstanding ball carrier, exploded for a 50-yard dash to the PHS 7, then on the very next play, Rich Stewart stole the ball right out of the hands of a stunned Ewing back.

It was all for naught, however, as Ewing scored on the next sequence of plays. Starting on the PHS 45, Laarz and his confreres dented the Little Tigers' defensive line with relentless efficiency on dive plays and quick openers off tackle. Laarz then burst over from the four, standing up, for the only tally.

Defense, Yes; Offense, No. In the second half, PHS tried to pull itself together. With a great deal of noise and bravado, the defensive unit stopped Ewing cold the first two times the Blue Devils had the ball and limited them to 40 yards rushing in the second half versus 135 in the first. Unfortunately, the offense didn't follow through.

With the exception of Billy Aiken, who made good yardage for back-to-back first downs in the fourth period when PHS drove to the Ewing 27 for its deepest penetration, it just wasn't there. Perhaps defensive coach Jerry Gronginger summed up the feeling of the PHS bench when he shouted in the third period, "migawd, we can't make a first down on these guys!"

It isn't cricket to single out a single series of downs, but the last effort of the Little Tigers underlines the flaccidity of their offense. With 1:10 to go, PHS took over the ball on its own 22. It was do or die now.

On the first play, Bob Mooney fumbled the snapback and lost five. On the second play, Bill Virullo, was stopped for no gain. On the third, Anthony Adams was off side. On the fourth and 15, Adams' pass was intercepted. There was no Little Tiger within 15 yards of it. It was the Little Tigers' second intercepted aerial in four attempts; the other two were incomplete.

What Happened? "They were a good club," said Wood. There's no question about that. They blocked and ran well. You could see it out there and you can see it better in the movies. They were the best blocking club we've faced.

"We couldn't get started until the fourth quarter. There's no reason why we shouldn't have gone. Our off tackle and trap plays were working. We just didn't call them right.

As for the passing, Wood acknowledged it was terrible. "I thought Adams and Cirullo were coming along but we don't have anybody who can throw that ball. We have some good receivers but no passers. But we're still working at it."

Looking ahead, Wood said that he didn't know what Aiken's injury would do to the team. "We'll see what happens next week." He indicated that Mooney, Aiken's replacement ought to be ready now.

"He's played a lot of ball, he's a year older I think he might surprise us. He doesn't have Aiken's weight but he's a shifty runner and he's not a bad blocker."

Walsted Returns. One unexpected bright spot was the revelation that Paul Walstad would start working out with the team again and would be ready to go for the Steinert game. Originally, Paul was thought to have been lost for the season with a fractured collarbone.

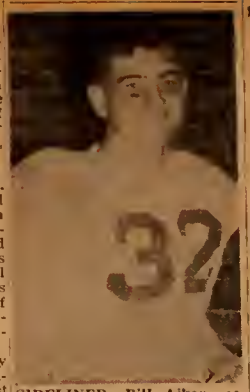
Wood reported that Dr. Arthur Mittnacht, orthopedic surgeon, had devised a special pad to protect Walstad's injury. "I'm very pleased at the amount of interest Dr. Mittnacht has had in it," said Wood.

KYTE AND LAWSON WIN

Carnegie Races. Jim Kyte, with his daughter Kim as crew, won three out of four Penguin class races Sunday on Lake Carnegie. Jerry Lawson won the GP-14 Class.

Scores in the Penguin contest were: Kyte 40.2, Phil Holt (one first) 36.3, Dexter Miller 34.8, John Reeder 26, Harry Cooke 23.1, Bob Wilson 21, Art Keiser 16, Peter Lawson, 15, Art Kuckes 7 and Jack Hammer 2.

In the GP-14 races, Lawson (two firsts) 22 points, Walt Gibson (two firsts) and 17.7, John Hemphill 12.5 and Tom Hilton 8.2. George Corl withdrew.



SIDELINED: Bill Aiken, co-captain and star fullback for the Little Tigers for the past three years, has been lost for the rest of the season. Bill sustained torn ligaments in his leg which will be in a cast for five weeks.

BROWN DEFENDS TITLES

Repeats at Pretty Brook. B. Manning Brown, Jr., successfully defended his singles tennis title at the Pretty Brook Club, defeating John R. Ferns, 6-2, 6-2, and then paired with Peter Hildrick-Smith to keep the doubles championship. They overcame John Claghorn and Pepper Constable in the finals, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4.

Mrs. Barbara Smoyer and Mrs. Kate Tredennick won the women's doubles, triumphing over Mrs. Betty Constable and Mrs. Joan Hicks, 6-4, 6-4. In mixed doubles, the defending champions, Mrs. Constable and Hildick-Smith, defeated Mrs. Jane Wilmerding and Brown, 6-4,6-3.

HUN WINS CLIFFHANGER

To Remain Undefeated. For the second time this year the Hun School football team scrambled in the final minute of play Saturday to twist an apparent defeat into a thrilling victory. The victim of Hun's eleventh hour heroics was Solebury which fell, 12-7, when the Red and Black uncorked a 70-yard pass play with seconds remaining. "It was a real cliffhanger," said Coach Hawley Waterman.

The victory was Hun's fourth straight and left it with a commanding 4-0 mark in the Penn Jersey League. For Hun, it means a virtual hammerlock on the league crown.

With only two league contests remaining, Waterman finds himself in the pleasant position of being able to say: "If we can get by Friends Central, I don't see how anybody can take it away from us." The championship would be Hun's first in the league which is in its fourth year of operation.

Friends Central comes to Princeton for its 3:15 Friday encounter with Hun with an unimpressive 1-2-1 record. "They're not a powerhouse," commented Waterman. "They are fairly fast but small; they have no big guys who can grind it out. So they try to go with deception.

"They run off a tight "T" from which they use a lot of tricky frills: fake punts which end up as a reverse runs, short passes to someone who then throws to someone else and screen passes." Waterman didn't say whether he thought this pigskin legerdemain would succeed, other than to offer, "We'll be in there trying."

Hun Trails. Against Solebury Hun found itself in this untenable position in the waning moments of the contest: the visitors, leading, 7-6, gained possession of the ball with three minutes to go and began driving, as they had all during the second half, toward the Hun goal line. They got as far as the three-yard line.

There, Solebury fumbled and Lonnie Kaplan recovered. Hun, which haden't been able to move to ball the entire second half, had 1:15 left to go 97 yards.

Quarterback Mark Savidge hit Kaplan with a 20-yard pass. A few plays later, third down on the 30, halfback Mike Mill-

Bill Bradley a Major Asset in U.S. Olympic Basketball Victory

When the Olympic basketball trials were held last April, it was pretty much of a foregone conclusion that Bill Bradley would be a member of the United States team. When the U. S. quintet came down the stretch in defense of its title, it was obvious why.

In the decisive game against the Russians, which saw the Soviet lead during the early action, the 6-5 Princetonian saw more action than any member of the 12-man U. S. squad. With his familiar coolness under pressure at the foul line, he made all six tries awarded him, several coming when they were needed to erase the early U.S.S.R. advantage.

Bradley finished the day with 10 points, feeding Lucius Jackson and Joe Caldwell time and again as the three combined for 41 of the 73 points scored by the victors. It was a 73-59 final, the Americans' finishing with a perfect 10-0 mark and 47 straight since basketball was introduced to the Olympics in 1928.

Forty-eight hours earlier, Puerto Rico surprised the U. S. quintet by holding a 24-23 lead at half-time. Bradley's reaction was again typical — he came up with 16 points to lead all players, the last 12 in the second half as the Americans rallied for a 62-42 victory.

The Tiger captain had been expected back in Princeton Monday, but accepted invitations to speak in a number of Chinese towns and cities where the University has had strong ties for more than half a century. Bradley will return early next week — just in time to begin practice for his team's defense of the Ivy title.

er, came around from his left side and threw a long bomb to Kaplan. "It must have gone 50 yards in the air," said Waterman, who reported they had put the play in three weeks ago but had never tried it.

"Nobody thought Kaplan was going to catch it," continued Waterman, "but he made a fantastic grab on the dead run on the 20." Kaplan was then caught from behind by Bryant Mitchell, Solebury speedster, but Mitchell was unable to bring down the 6-3, 225 Kaplan. "His arms just sort of slipped down and Kaplan dragged him along," said Waterman. When Kaplan crossed the goal, the Hun students exploded en masse and rushed onto the field.

Hun had scored the first time it had possession of the ball and appeared headed for an easy afternoon. But Solebury dominated the second half, scoring in the third to take a 7-6 lead. The Spartans outrushed Hun, 198 to 86, and compiled twice as many first downs, 14-7. "They took the game away from us," said Waterman, "but our kids hung on."

Defensively for Hun, co-captain Warren Martz had 15 tackles. Kaplan had 13 and recovered the key fumble that set up Hun's last-minute heroics. "He's going to make a good football player for somebody," said Waterman. Mark Savidge scored Hun's first tally on a two-yard plunge.

I'D LIKE TO BE THE JUDGE

But . . . . . It seems like a simple enough problem: a lawyer resigns his job as magistrate and you appoint another to take his place.

But Princeton Township has been searching for a magistrate since early in September and Magistrate James S. Hill, whose resignation precipitated the search, is still patiently serving, although he originally hoped he could step down October 1.

It's like threading your way through a labyrinth: somewhere at the end of the maze is the lawyer who will finally sit on the bench, but getting to him is not so easy.

To begin with it is important to have a local, practising attorney. Magistrate Hill has a fine record as Township Magistrate, but he is a corporation lawyer hearing traffic, criminal and welfare cases.

Painted in a Corner. Once a lawyer is sworn in as magistrate, he can't practice before any local governing bodies, and this can be tough indeed on a busy Princeton lawyer with a large local practice.

An important real estate client wants him to present a controversial development to the Planning Board. Sorry, he can't. Zoning Board for a series of variances? No, that's out, too. A client of long-standing has a chance to buy a liquor license: will his old friend represent him before committee or Council? Sorry.

ON THE DEMOCRATIC SIDE: Nicholas J. Bartolino (left) and Enoch J. Durbin with Congressman Frank Thompson at the League of Women Voters candidates' meeting. They are seeking election to Borough Council; Mr. Thompson is running for a sixth term in the House of Representatives from the Mercer- Burlington District.

Also, a magistrate is not allowed to appear as a private lawyer before other magistrates. Theodore Tams, Borough magistrate, cannot represent a client in Mr. Hills court, nor can any member of Mr. Tams law firm.

Two Princeton attorneys are automatically out of the running. Neither Ralph Mason nor Harvey S. oore Jr. can serve because their law partner, Gordon Griffin is out, too, although there was a time when he would have been eligible. Louis Gerber served as both Township attorney and Township magistrate.

Once chosen, a magistrate does not find that he has an onerous job. Magistrate Hill holds court twice a month for about two hours at a time. He is a scrupulous magistrate, explaining carefully to people just what their rights are, and going into the detail of the law so that a layman can understand.

It is imoortant for a magistrate to be on hand and available at odd hours. Both Borough and ownship have only scant jail facilities, so a magistrate must be able to leave the dinner table, if necessary, take a plea and get a man off to the

MUSIC

FIRST CONCERT GIVEN

By Princeton Symphony. On Monday night at McCarter Theatre, the Princeton Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Nicholas Harsanyi, presented its first concert of the 1964-65 season. For his program, Mr. Harsanyi chose the Overture to "The Marriage Of Figaro" by Mozart, the Concerto for Violin and Small Orchestra by Edward Cone and the Symphony No. 8 (Old. No. 4) in G Major by Antonin Dvorak.

Once again the Princeton Symphony displayed itself as a vital cultural force for the community and surrounding area, for this was no easy program to prepare. In the short time allotted for rehearsals before concerts, Mr. Harsanyi led the orchestra in one of the most challenging programs it has ever attempted.

Every concert - goer has heard the Overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" at one time or another by the great orchestra either in live or recorded versions.

Comparison with the best, then, could predispose the listener to harsh judgements, but the performance by the Princeton Symphony stood up well in all musical values concerned with such an evaluation. The tempo was right, the feeling, the intonation, the excitement of the music; all was in its proper place, a thoroughly enjoyable reading.

Cone Work Played. The Cone Violin Concerto that followed, unlike the well-known Mozart work, poses an entirely different challenge to the orchestra and to its audience. It is a complex score lasting some thirty-five minutes. There are many beautiful colors and genuine musical ideas that predominate in this impressive piece, though there are also many vague areas where the music seems wanting in definitive harmonic material.

The role of the violin is lyrical throughout, but an occasional toccata-like passage displaying the "virtuoso" side of the violin appeared to weaken rather than strengthen the score.

The violin soloist was Yfrah Neaman who has performed other works of Mr. Cone, notably his Sonata for Unaccompanied Violin. Mr. Neaman's effort in rendering the difficult solo part of the Concerto deserves special praise, but it should also be noted that this writer found the violinist's tone and general approach to the music to be on the thin side without much variance through the duration of the three movement work. Of the several pieces by Mr. Cone that this reviewer has heard, he found this Violin Concerto to be among his finest achievements.

The final work of the program, Dvorak's Symphony No. 4, is a masterpiece of lyricism. Its four movements abound in rich melodic material, beautifully orchestrated.

It is a pleasure to hear this work attempted locally, even if the brass over-emphasizes its part occasionally and some out-of-tune playing in the winds section occurs. These failings are secondary to the fact that in so brief a period, Mr. Harsanyi can prepare his ensemble in a convincing performance of this magnificent music. Perhaps next year the maestro will take it upon himself to try Dvorak's Second Symphony with his forces, which seem to be better this year than ever.

SHADE PROGRAM OFFERED

By Tree Commission. If you are a Princeton Township resident and would like a shade tree you may obtain a 12-foot-high tree for as little as $10.

Any township resident desiring to have a shade tree planted on his property along the right-of-way of any publicly maintained street should make out an application at the Township Engineering Department, Township Hall. Upon the submission of the request form and a $10 fee, the Township Shade Tree Commission will review the request to see if it conforms to the rules and regulations of the Shade Tree Planting Ordinance. This is the outline of a shade tree program being implemented by the Commission.

If approved, the Commission will have planted a two-inch diameter, 12-foot tree of the approved species. The tree will be purchased and planted by the Township but it must be maintained by the applicant.

The intent of the program is to replace shade trees that have died or have been removed from Township streets. Since the Commission has a limited budget, applicants will be reviewed on a first come, first served basis.

IN MEMORIAM

PETRONE — In loving memory of Mary Petrone. Died: October 31, 1957.

Sleep on, dear, good Mother, it has been long years;
Since you left our hearts filled with sadness and tears.
Yours was a heart that was blithesome and gay;
Scattering sunshine all along the way.
You know how we loved you, and yes, love you yet;
Though God took you from us, we cannot forget.

Dearly loved and sadly missed by Husband and entire family.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO

October 29, 1959. Parents who are pressured by children in their middle teens for a chance to drive the family car may be interested to hear of a woman in Lawrence Township who, five years ago, let her nine-year-old son pilot her car down a busy Trenton street. The youngster ran into trouble because he correctly stopped for a traffic light, and a passing policeman couldn't see anyone behind the wheel. Mother paid $55.

During the same week in 1959, a Princetonian (old enough to know better, too) was nabbed for driving 65 miles an hour in a 30 - mph zone. A 90-day license revocation and a $40 fine slowed him up.

New York Airways had just announced long - range plans to provide helicopter service between Trenton, Princeton, Newark and New York. "Long-range" meant 1964, according to the chopper operators. But it's obvious that the plans and/or helicopters never got off the ground.

By mid-October, 1959, it was already beginning to seem like a long season in Palmer Stadium. The Tigers had lost their opener to Rutgers, beaten Columbia, and then had been thoroughly whupped by Penn, 18-0.

TEN YEARS AGO

October 28, 1954. Six Rutgers students, who had spent the early hours of a recent morning literally painting the town red (with cans of spray paint), were taking a special course in essay writing.

Princeton Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro had required all six to do 2,000-word compositions on "My Own Views on the Premeditated and Deliberate Defacement of Public and Private Property." Tuition fee was a $15 fine apiece — and personal delivery of copies to six officials of Rutgers, Princeton University and Princeton Borough was also required.

Said TOWN TOPICS in October 1954 "Republican political problems have mounted during the past week as conservative and liberal interests within the party continued the sort of sniping that usually ends months earlier with completion of the primary race."

In 1954, though, the sniping was not nationwide or as vicious. Chief trouble - maker then was former Representative Fred A. Hartley, who repeatedly urged that Senatorial candidate Clifford Case withdraw from the November ballot. The reason: Hartley said Case was "too liberal." The outcome: Case won handily in November.

We Move to Valley Road

Starting Monday, all Township municipal bodies will hold their meetings in the auditorium of Valley Road School: Township Committee, Planning Board and Zoning Board.

The reason for the shift across the street is that Wilbur J. Shinn, Township Zoning Officer, must move his offices from the Stony Brook building on Stockton Street to the Township Hall meeting room so that the School Board's new assistant superintendent can have office space in Stony Brook.

Mr. Shinn and his staff will stay in Township Hall until the Township's temporary office building has been completed, probably January 1. It will be erected on the slight rise to the south of the Township Hall.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

October 27, 1949. A Princetonian (who took great pride in his knowledge of things Princeton) had appeared on a radio quiz program in early October, 1949. "One last question," said the m.c. "What was the largest building in the United States at the time of the Revolution?"

To his everlasting humiliation and financial loss, the Princetonian historian guessed wrong. The correct answer: Nassau Hall.

Before 1949, a football game in Palmer Stadium invariably meant the loss of gual posts, regardless of outcome. But 15 years ago some thrifty anonymity put an end to all that.

Firsts, the posts were made of steel instead of the wood used up to that time. Second, they were imbedded in concrete. Third, and obviously the slickest idea, they were generously coated with Crisco.

Add gorgeous trees, high view over a rushing brook, winding terraced paths, rock-walled gardens, tennis court, dog run and children's "club house" to this artists sketch (for a magazine article), and you have some idea of the fascination of the handsome contemporary it depicts.

As for the interior — this shot of the stunning living room gives only a hint of its interest. Contemporary materials and topflight design have combined to make the house a marvelously liveable one as well as something to see. Downstairs is "kid heaven." Five bedrooms, 2 baths, play area can contain and amuse innumerable offspring, leaving parents and guest in peace above. (Both floors have access to the outdoors on grade level.) Upstairs, living room, dining room, master suite, guest suite, are on one end, while adjoining the wonderful kitchen are a family-eating room (with fireplace) maid's suite, and mud room. The layout couldn't be better. Price is high, but why not? Exclusively ours.

THE LIBRARY & RECREATION

A RESPONSIBLE VIEW

In a statement issued this week, Fred English, a Republican candidate for Borough Council, charged that the local Democrats talked about a community outdoor swimming pool, a teenage canteen and a new library in words suggesting that the Republican candidates are against these things. "This is absurd," Mr. English said. "Both the joint recreation project and the joint library project are well underway and were initiated under the local Republican administration."

Mr. English said, "Of course both Republicans and Democrats want these improvements. The question is not which political party wants these things, but which party can show how these advantages can be obtained in the near future without sky-rocketing local taxes."

Mr. English said that the Democratic platform is devoid of any discussion of these improvements from a tax point of view.

"Capital expenditures for construction and grading of Community Park are estimated at $872,000, exclusive of annual operating expenses," English said.

Pointing out the pressing need for recreational facilities, he said, "We could borrow the money and repay it with a bond issue, but this would cost about $78,000 a year and add at least $10 to everybody's tax bill unless new rateables will absorb the cost."

Mr. English stressed the point that we must not delay the new library which is equally important. "We must remember the library will be used 12 months a year while the outdoor pool will only be used in summer." He said that construction of the library is estimated at about $1,000,000.

Mr. English made the point that the Borough and Township have sufficient borrowing power to finance both the library and community park and at the same time keep well within their debt limits. "However," English said, "we all know it costs money to borrow money and the taxpayer foots the bill."

Mr. English pointed out that more than a third of Princeton's borrowing capacity is already paying for capital improvements of prior years. "In addition," he said, "the Borough has sewer improvement commitments, and we should reserve a substantial percentage of our borrowing power for future needs."

Concluding his statement, Fred English said, "First commitments come first. The joint library agreement predates the joint recreation agreement. I think we should start construction of the library next year. As for Community Park, I think for the sake of economy we should undertake it in stages, giving priority to the swimming pool. We can set our sights on next year, but the ultimate decision will depend on engineering and budgetary considerations."

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved © F. Bickmore & Co., Inc., New York.

"THEY DON'T BUILD HOUSES LIKE THEY USED TO"

"They don't build houses like they use to," said a spokesman opening a special Home Week Show.

"They build them better.

"And in these last few years since electrical home heating systems have become available at all price levels, 'they' at last have really come up with the best."

— Your Eye Can Fool You —

Electricity for heating he indicated, "interestingly, has become a guarantee in a way of much more than comfort and convenience."

Houses built to Gold Medallion standards mean "the things the eye can't see, like insulation, are up to snuff.

"And with all sorts of equipment getting better looking each year, a pretty surface, like a pretty face, can fool the eye. But in these Gold Medallion homes, you know the equipment . . . from the heating system to the last recommended appliance is built to serve, and not just better. Your electrical equipment is built to serve best."

WALK AROUND ON PAPER

"You may be having as big a traffic headache as the big city expert who's trying to unsnarl the five o'clock rush. But if you'll walk around on paper a while, you stand a better chance of unsnarling yours."

That the gist of an architects advice when families considering remodeling, reconstructing, and the installation of electrical home heating systems.

"Even if they don't change any walls, they're bound to gain more space somewhere. It would be a pity not to put it into a better living arrangement.

That's because the electrical heating system adds no bulky equipment of its own . . . frees up space that housed old-fashioned boilers, tanks, and radiators.

"We do a sketch of the house plan as it now is, and start walking the pencil around. Too many criss crosses. . .and it's amazing how relocating a refrigerator, let's say, or grouping furniture a new way into a 'conversation' corner can clear what I call 'paths to gracious living.'

"Comfort, of course, is the principal reason people want electrical heating . . . but they get an amazing extra in freed-up room arrangements."

UP-DATE... ANTIQUE HEATING NOW!

This elegant relic reminds us of bygone days. Be elegant, better your days ahead with total electric home heating.

QUESTION BOX

Q. Is brick the best building material for a house that's to be heated by electricity?

A. The choice of exterior is strictly a matter of taste. It's what's in between, you might say, that makes the major difference. From the outset, quality insulation is a point the electrical heating industry has hammered home. They knew they had a superior product . . . they didn't want its reputation dimmed by extraneous factors like drafts caused by poor construction. So good construction has also been emphasized to the point of being spelled out in booklet form.

As to the brick which you seem to feel is also hand-in-hand: No. A fine material, but not the only satisfactory one. Perhaps you got that impression from some recent large ads in consumer magazines featuring satisfied users of electrical heat. As I recall, two of them did have bricks houses . . . but that's just coincidence.

Q. How reliable are the advance estimates you get on what electrical heating will cost?

A. Amazingly close, you'll find. And that goes for estimates on conversion of older dwellings to electrical heating systems as well as to new houses.

Also, as you may know, 10-payment plans, to spread costs evenly throughout the year, are also very widely available.

Q. Is there anything new due in the way of electrical heating equipment?

A. There's always something "new." However, a strong plus in favor of electrical heating equipment bought today . . . and that is it's still going to be pretty much like new fifteen years from now. It's ahead of its time in concept . . . and physically built to last. As for actual types of equipment. . .electrical baseboards, radiant ceiling cable and wall panels still lead in popularity.

If You Are Planning To Build, Buy or Remodel Call Any One Of The Contractors Listed Below. He'll Give You All The Facts On Total Electric Home Heating.

FREE LIFE INSURANCE: One year ago, the Senate voted overwhelmingly for ratification of the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty — halting the rain of radioactive fallout and decreasing the danger of life on this planet. Senator Goldwater voted against this treaty. The U.S. already has sufficient blast power to blanket the populated areas of the earth nine and one half times over. We did not then, and do not now, need more H Bomb tests. SENATOR HUMPHREY was largely responsible for introduction of the test ban bill, and moreover he is personally responsible for the creation of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, THE ONLY U.S. Government agency created to study means of preventing war through international arms control. The best "policy" is a vote for Johnson and Humphery

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

The U.N. tropics United States money in 1962 the U.S. spent $24 million on the U.N.; in return, the U.N. spent $87 million for U.S. goods and stocks; H. Brauer, Sat. Rev., 9-24-64). In addition to being a profitable, economic investment, the U.N. serves U.S. interests well by its peace keeping activities in the Congo, Gaza Strip, Cyprus, and elsewhere. During the last administration, Senator HUMPHREY was THE LEADER in efforts to strengthen the U.S. by strengthening the U.N. In dismal contrast, Senator Goldwater DID NOTHING towards helping the U.N. continue its vital work. Where the U.N. is weak, Humphrey seeks to strengthen; Goldwater seeks to abandon. Example - Goldwater voted for the bill which would have limited our investment in U.N. bonds. Thus, he voted against an investment which not only saves American lives, but also pays back more than three dollars for every one invested. Vote for John and Humphrey to protect and build your investment in the U.N.
